Snow Storm Heads North From Dixie After Heavy Fall

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22 (AP)—Four East Dixie states—still reeling from the mighty snowstorm which last night isolated several mountainous areas—took some comfort tonight as it moved back north where it belonged.

But the hardest hit area—Southestern Kentucky and upper East Tennessee — remained marooned, with communications down completely and roads all but impassable. From 18 to 22 inches of snow fell in that area in a 24-hour period, although it melted fast and remained on the ground only in the upper elevations.

Virginia and North Carolina, except in scattered instances, cleared out from under in good shape. Lighter snow flurries had settled as far south as Georgia and North Carolina.

Knoxville itself was still on a limited - communications basis, with telephone calls delayed even on emergency basis. But it shoveled enough out during the day to allow Kentucky's Wildcats to play Tennessee's Cotton Bowl-bound Vols to a 14-14 Southeastern Conference football stalemate on a soggy field.

Tarp Protects Field

A heavy tarpaulin over the Tennessee playing field here kept the thick layers of snow from causing the annual game to be cancelled. The field was soggy and wet at game time.

The East Tennessee city of 125,000 began to dig out today from a 22-inch avalanche of snow, about half of which stuck. And the Weather Bureau said it was even heavier in mountain sections of the four-state area.

Electrical service to thousands of homes was out, Western Union lines were down, and automobiles moved at a snail's pace over treacherous highways.

4,000 Grid Fans Marooned

Automobiles, many carrying football fans to the Tennessee-Kentucky game, were stalled and abandoned along the slick roadways. An estimated 4,000 grid fans were reported marooned at London and Corbin, Ky.

Hotels and motels in the two cities were jammed with fans who had set out for Knoxville for the game.

Total damage could not be estimated. The Weather Bureau here had nothing on its books to compare with the heavy fall. Fifteen inches fell during a 24-hour period in Knoxville but that was 66 years ago—1886.

Unions Face Big Decisions During Week

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—Top leadership of the AFL and CIO meet separately next week to choose new presidents.

Most observers see AFL Secretary-Treasurer George Meany as the logical successor to President William Green who died yesterday. But in the CIO a vigorous contest was under way for the job of President Philip Murray, who died Nov. 9.

Although few labor leaders were willing to discuss it openly, the question of unifying the two organizations was getting some serious thinking. Evidence appeared to be lacking, however, that unity would suddenly become a real possibility rather than a will 'o the wisp—even with brand new leadership at the top of both organizations.

Meany, 58-year-old one-time plumber who rose to second spot in the eight-million member AFL in 1940, has been steering the AFL for a year or more during frequent illnesses of Green.

Meany Is Aggressive

Meany is credited with an aggressiveness which probably more than compensated for Green's failing strength of the past few years. When the AFL convention last September publicly endorsed the Democratic national ticket for the first time in history, Meany was reportedly the driving force behind the decision.

The 14-man AFL Executive Council meets here Tuesday to elect Green's successor. He will serve at least until the next convention.

The two top CIO contenders are Allan S. Haywood, 65-year-old executive vice president, and Walter Reuther, 45-year-old head of the United Auto Workers, biggest of all CIO unions.

Few Will Predict Choice

Few were willing to speculate on which of the two men would emerge, from meetings starting in New York Monday, as Murray's successor. The New York session of CIO vice presidents and executive officers was scheduled to discuss a fitting memorial to Murray. But the main topic for study undoubtedly will be the matter of Murray's successor. The following Friday the CIO Executive Committee meets in Atlantic City in preparation for the annual convention. The convention, starting Dec. 1, officially will elect a CIO president.

271 More Casualties

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP) — The Defense Department today identified 271 additional battle casualties in Korea. A new list reported 68 killed, 178 wounded, 18 missing, two known captured and five injured.

Crossroads Comment

By G. H. S.

Did you ever wonder what your reflex actions would be in a split-second maneuver to escape sudden death?

I found out they worked satisfactorily for me, when for the first time in twenty years of automobile driving I encountered an emergency situation. But I want no more such experiences. I've had enough.

My car must have been traveling 55 miles an hour, around a slow curve into a slow road dip. Ahead in my lane was yellow road machinery; unseen until I rounded the curve. Cars had already entered a one-way lane. A flagman with a stop sign waved to me. He was not more than three car lengths away from the machinery when he should have been back a block at the beginning of the curve. That's my opinion. His would be that I shouldn't have been traveling 55 miles an hour.

The car brakes worked but the auto started skidding sideways. To escape turning over and rolling into everything up front I eased the brakes, but then it was head-on into the machinery or cut off onto the shoulder which luckily wasn't soft. I found that out after I got onto it. Luck. Nobody hurt, no damage done. I was sure mad at that flagman; and he was sore at me no doubt. But what's the use of arguing. Next time he'll go farther back to a proper safety signalling position; and I'll be travelling only 40 miles an hour. Even at that there are enough road hazards to scare the living daylights out of a fellow.

And because of those hazards—whatever your speed—the advice of George Powell, Kansas City, president of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association, has considerable merit:

"Allow yourself a margin of safety—drive defensively."

That's me, hereafter!

NAMED TO CABINET—George Magoffin Humphrey, 62, Cleveland business man, is shown in his M. A. Hanna Co. office shortly after it was announced he would become Secretary of the Treasury. (AP Wirephoto).

Ike To Rest And Consider Vacant Posts

NEW YORK, Nov. 22—(AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower wound up a week of major job appointments and conferences today by resting at home and mulling over four cabinet posts yet to be filled.

Still to be chosen are the secretaries of labor, agriculture and commerce and the postmaster general.

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey conferred for 45 minutes at the general's Columbia University residence, but there was no hint of what they talked about. Driscoll has said he was not seeking a cabinet job.

Back in Trenton Driscoll said the visit was "personal" and that the two discussed "domestic problems with particular emphasis on federal-state relationships." He repeated he did not want a cabinet post.

Eisenhower and his wife returned to New York by train early today from Washington, where last night they attended a reunion of the general's 1915 class at West Point. They travelled in a private car on a regular train.

He Avoids Office 2 Days

They drove directly to their home from Pennsylvania Station. The President-elect is trying to adopt a policy of keeping away from his offfce on Saturday and Sunday.

James C. Haggerty, his press secretary, said a list of the general's appointments for Monday would be available tomorrow afternoon.

This made it evident the general's proposed trip to Korea in search of a way to end the war there would not start this weekend. The date of the trip has not been announced and will not be.

Eisenhower rested after putting in one of his busiest and most momentous weeks since the Republican National Convention last July.

He ended a golfing vacation at Augusta, Ga., to fly to Washington last Tuesday for an administration change-over conference with President Truman.

Then on Wednesday, he declared through Sen. Alexander Wiley, Wisconsin Republican, that he stands with the United Nations in opposing forcible repatriation of prisoners captured in Korea by the U. N. forces. He conferred also with Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio on congressional legislation.

Thursday A Big Day

He followed this up Thursday by making his first three cabinet appointments—John Foster Dulles as Secretary of State, Charles E. Wilson of General Motors as Secretary of Defense, and Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon as Secretary of the Interior.

The appointments were announced while he discussed foreign problems across a luncheon table with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Ike wound-up the week by naming his choices for three more top governmental positions — George M. Humphrey, Cleveland industrialist, as secretary of the treasury; Herbert Brownell, New York attorney as attorney general, and Harold Stassen, former Minnesota governor, as chief of the foreign aid program.

Soldiers Name Korean Bunker For Pin-Up Girl

FULTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—Somewhere in Korea a bunker will soon be named in honor of a Fulton girl, Miss Marilyn Sherer.

It came about quite by accident. Her picture was lost by Master Sergeant James Edwards of Fulton, now on his way home. Someone from Company C, 224 Infantry Regiment, found it and it was placed on the wall of the company's command post.

But who was she? The Charley Company men wanted to know. The only clue they had was the name of a Fulton firm on the frame.

So they sent the picture to the Fulton Sun-Gazette for identification, and said they'd like to get her name, and have the picture back. They wanted to name their bunker for her and call her their pin-up.

The staff readily identified the picture as that of Miss Sherer. They sent it back along with the the word that C Company's pin-up also would write to them personally.

Frederick Shayne Lectures Before Historical Society

The second annual sustaining membership dinner of the Pettis County Historical Society was held at the Bothwell Hotel on Friday, Nov. 21, at 7 p.m., preceded by an informal reception on the mezzanine.

Guest speaker for the evening was Frederick E. Shayne, professor of art at the University of Missouri, who gave an illustrated lecture on the Scruggs Vandevort Barney collection of Missouri scenes painted by 24 Missouri artists. Members of the audience were permitted to ask questions about the paintings after the lecture.

C. F. Scotten, president, opened the program with the suggestion that Sedalia may be able to celebrate a centennial soon. Among the historical dates he mentioned were 1851, in which the streets of Sedalia were laid out and the Missouri-Pacific Railroad ran its first train into the town, and 1856, in which Sedalia became the county seat.

Scotten then presented Judge J. V. Kesterson, toastmaster for the occasion, who welcomed the guests and asked Maurice Hogan to introduce Shayne. Hogan was formerly one of Shayne's art students at the university.

The banquet tables were decorated with Thanksgiving motifs. The center of the speakers table was set with two horns-of-plenty filled with fruits and flowers. Miniature turkeys were placed throughout the tables, with streamers of green ivy adding color to the scene.

Seated at the speakers table were Mr. and Mrs. Scotten, Judge and Mrs. Kesterson, Mr. and Mrs. Hogan, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilks, Mrs. E. F. Yancey, Mrs. Dolly Shy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Leach, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Curry, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Yount, Mr. and Mrs. Vine Harris representing the Missouri State Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Brown representing the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, Professor Larson, head of the Stephens College art department, and Mr. Shayne.

Mrs. Yancey was general chairman for the dinner and decorations. She was assisted by Mrs. Scotten and Mrs. Yount.

Unrest In GOP Appears

Duel Shapes-Up Between Forces Of Taft, Dewey

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—The first signs of a struggle for power within the new Eisenhower administration are beginning to make their appearance.

The prospective chief antagonists are two veterans of the Republican political wars — Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, twice his party's presidential nominee, and Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who lost three efforts to gain the nomination.

Involved may be the over-all trend of President-elect Eisenhower's next four years in office.

In essence, Taft and Dewey represent two wings of the Republican party struggling to channel the Eisenhower administration into their own pattern.

Dewey represents what — for lack of a better description—is called the "internationalist" wing of the party. Taft represents those who believe, as Taft said in the campaign, that the greatest threat of Communism comes from within and not from without.

At this point, Dewey and his influence are in the ascendancy. There are reports that Eisenhower asked the New York governor to become his secretary of state, but that Dewey suggested John Foster Dulles instead.

Dulles Advised Dewey

Dulles served as Dewey's foreign affairs adviser in the 1944 and 1948 campaign, when Herbert Brownwell Jr., designed by Eisenhower for attorney general, was Dewey's campaign manager.

Gov. Douglas McKay of Oregon, chosen for secretary of the interior can't be classed as a "Dewey man", and yet he was at the side of the New York governor when Dewey engineered a resolution through last June's Governors Conference in Houston, Tex., which was an indirect slap at Taft in the Texas delegate squabble.

Thus far, Taft can claim only one supporter in the cabinet, George M. Humphrey of Cleveland, named for secretary of the Treasury.

To a large measure, a president only proposes and Congress disposes. That is where Taft is likely to have his big innings.

If he chooses to fight, there is little doubt that the Ohio senator can install himself as Republican floor leader in the new Senate. In fact, he might get it without a fight if there is the "amicable settlement" he has predicted.

Taft's Influence Strong

Whatever Taft's position, the Ohioan will have a strong influence on the course of legislation. Eisenhower's program could suffer greatly if Taft opposed any portion of it. If Taft is co-operative, as he has told friends he wants to be, the program will find smoother sailing.

Taft apparently has checked off any future ambition to become President. He says he enjoys being a Senator and all he is interested in now is making the new administration a success.

But his friends know that Taft has his own ideas of what it will take to make that administration a success, and they do not always jibe with Dewey's.

Dewey, of course, still is suspected by other aspiring Republican politicians of holding presidential ambitions. He is young enough to wait until Eisenhower has served two full terms and can be available for the nomination again, if he maintains his political prestige in the meantime.

Paper Proves Few Read Korea News

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 22 (AP)—The Vancouver Sun wanted to find out whether anyone is reading stories on the Korean War.

So it ran the same dispatch—on the front page—three days in a row. What happened? Nothing.

In a newspage store today the Sun says not one of its 500,000 readers phoned to check the "error."

The editors pointed out that whenever a comic strip or feature column is dropped or repeated the switchboard is deluged with calls from irate readers.

"Deafening silence" was the only reaction to the repetition of the Korean story, the Sun said.

Price War Increases Among Gas Stations

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—The gasoline price war which started in St. Louis County about seven weeks ago, became more fierce today with some stations selling for 17.9 cents a gallon.

This was six cents below the regular price for major brand gasoline.

The war also spread into the city with some stations selling at 20.9 cents a gallon—a drop of four cents.

St. Louis Man Loses Gamble

Financial Pressure Results In Robbery Attempt, Death

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22 (AP)—A St. Louis ice cream firm president, who was slain as he attempted to rob an armored money truck here yesterday, had been "living beyond his means" and was under financial pressure, a sister said today.

Mrs. Ethel Levenson of Omaha, Neb., told a Post-Dispatch reporter her brother, 45-year-old Jacob R. Katz, had borrowed money to go into the ice cream business in St. Louis in 1946, and recently had been pressed by creditors demanding repayment.

He said he worried a great deal about his financial troubles.

Katz was identified at the morgue by a friend of the family after two special officers matched keys found in his pocket with a parked car found near the scene.

Katz, president of the five-store Reed ice cream stores, was slain by a truck guard who had been almost knocked unconscious by a home-made ammonia bomb set off inside the money compartment of the armored truck.

The Guarantee Service Co., owner of the armored truck, said the truck carried "a lot of money" but wouldn't say how much.

Special Officers Chester W. Rhodes and Frank Howard said Katz had no police record and as far as they could ascertain had never been in any kind of trouble before.

Police Check Auto Keys

The two officers began checking cars parked near the Mound City Trust Co., scene of the holdup attempt, after a set of six keys was found in Katz's pocket.

One key fit the fourth machine checked. A check with the license bureau revealed it had been issued to the Reed ice cream stores. An insurance card found in the car bore the name of "J. R. Katz."

Positive identification was made after the two officers went to Katz's two-story residence in suburban University City. There, Katz's wife, Margaret, told officers her husband left home about 10 a. m. yesterday and had failed to return.

She said she called the ice cream plant and was informed Katz had been there in the morning, but left about 10:30 a.m. with another man whose identity was not known.

The two officers surmised Katz apparently intended to drive the armored truck to some secluded spot where he could force open the locked money compartment. Tools, which they said could be used for this, were found on the floor of his car.

Guard Shoots Five Times

Guard Thomas F. Doerflinger, 24, managed to fire five times through an opening in the truck after Katz had inserted a tube from the crude bomb into the money compartment, sending a stream of blinding gas there. Three of the bullets struck Katz.

Katz, the father of three children, came to St. Louis from Omaha where he was in the electrical contracting business. He bought the St. Louis ice cream outlet and expanded it into a five-store chain.

Three Escape As Car Rolls North Of Here

Three persons escaped injury about 6:30 p.m. Saturday when the car in which they were riding turned a somersault and landed on its top in a ditch about four miles north of Sedalia on Highway 65.

Ray Martin, 2101 East 12th, was the driver of the 1949 Dodge sedan in which he was accompanied by Mrs. Martin, and her aunt, Mrs. Eva Warren, 1220 South Massachusetts. Although they were thrown from the front seat into the back part of the sedan, their hurts consisted of hardly more than a good shakeup and slight bruises. They were returning to their home from St. Joseph, where they had been on a visit.

Martin explained that as he was coming down the Cedar Creek Hill and came upon another car with the lights out and barely moving. He said he applied the brakes and pulled to the shoulder in an endeavor to miss the vehicle and his car turned over on its top.

The driver of the other vehicle, according to witnesses who were driving behind Martin, said the car moved away slowly, apparently started to stop and then sped on south on the highway. The other motorists stopped and assisted the Martins and Mrs. Warren out the rear door of the overturned sedan.

The top of the car was smashed in and the front door on the left side sprung.

George Chamberlin's wrecker was called and turned the car back on its wheels, and Martin was able to drive it on into Sedalia.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Warren were brought to Sedalia by two young men from Marshall.

State Trooper Earl Gregory of the Highway Patrol conducted an investigation.

Missouri's GOP Makes Plans For New Legislative Session

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 22—(AP)—Missouri Republicans, flushed with success at carrying the state for Eisenhower, are cooking up big plans for the 1953 legislative session.

They're back in control of the house of representatives now and they mean to make the most of it.

That became very apparent yesterday when the victorious majority caucussed here to organize for the battle ahead. The senate will still be Democratic by a narrow margin. The governorship and all the state offices will be in the hands of Democrats. But the Republicans are planning some surprises.

The plans haven't jelled completely yet and aren't ready for official announcement. But behind the scenes, the Republican house members are doing two things:

1. They're trying to weld a working team of leaders, and;

2. They are getting ready for a series of investigations into operations of the Democratic administration.

In the investigations, the Republicans plan to pry into the workings of several state departments. The word whispered about is that former Rep. Richard M. Webster of Carthage will be one of the chief investigators. He was unsuccessful as the Republican nominee for attorney general and gained a reputation in the last legislature as a sharp cross examiner.

A former FBI special agent, Rep. Samuel B. Murphy of St. Louis county, also a lawyer, is being boomed for the job of investigating committee chairman.

It wouldn't be surprising if Gov. elect Phil M. Donnelly kept hands off of some of the probes. When he was governor before, he conducted some investigations of his own.

One of them was aimed at alleged irregularities in handling sales tax collections and settlements. They were then under control of G. Hubert Bates, who has been director of revenue under Gov. Forrest Smith. Bates was elected state treasurer in the Nov. 4 election.

It's almost a cinch that if the house doesn't investigate the state revenue department, Donnelly will. He and Smith have been at odds before. And they clashed bitterly over the sales tax probe that came toward the end of Donnelly's first administration.

Naturally, the house Republicans hope to make political capital out of any results turned up by the investigations.

US, British Split On Indian Proposal To End Korea War

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—The United States and Britain split apart tonight over British support for Indian proposals to end the Korean War.

Then they prepared to battle for a clear decision in an urgent 21-nation meeting here Sunday night.

A U. S. spokesman said that the U. S. tried to get Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden to agree to far-reaching changes in the Indian resolution.

The U. S. wants to spell out in unmistakable terms the machinery for repatriation of war prisoners that would prevent their forcible return to Communist zones at any time. President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower has endorsed this principle laid down by the outgoing Truman administration.

The U. S. position was presented to Eden and British Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd by U. S. Delegate Ernest Gross at a meeting of more than an hour in Eden's New York hotel suite. Gross outlined the U. S. position on direct instructions from Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

The British insisted that the Indian proposal for a repatriation commission was enough and made it clear they will push for its approval instead of for the 21-nation resolution sponsored by the U. S. and co-sponsored by 20 other countries, including Britain.

US Won't Go Along

The U. S. spokesman after the meeting said that the "U. S. could not go along with the abrupt abandonment by Britain of the 21-power resolution."

A British spokesman close to Eden said it was "entirely premature to discuss abandonment; it is a tactical question of priorities which must be thrashed out in the meeting of the 21 nations."

He emphasized that Britain has not withdrawn from its co-sponsorship of the U. S. resolution and has not withdrawn from the group.

The U. S. spokesman said he did not mean that the British would formally withdraw their co-sponsorship of the 21-power plan. "They will not actively support the 21-power resolution but will push the Indian," he said.

Sir Percy Spender, Australian ambassador to the U. S. and chairman of the 21-nation group studying all the Korean truce proposals, announced in Washington that he had convoked the emergency meeting at U. N. headquarters here at 6:30 p. m. Sunday. Acheson asked for the session and will fly back from a visit to Ottawa to attend it.

The British spokesman said Eden's position is this: The Indian proposals furnish a basis for working out an armistice and they safeguard the principles of non-forced repatriation.

Eden Shuns Exact Wording

He recalled that Eden pleaded against trying to get exact and complete language in any resolution forwarded to the Communists.

The American position was that the machinery had to be spelled out specifically, and it was this agreement Gross failed to get from Eden.

The break came as dispatches from Moscow reported that the entire press there was sneering at the Indian proposals as an American inspired devide that would create a mass of displaced persons.

Neither Gross nor other members of the U. S. delegation was aware of a broad hint by Indian leaders here that they might be ready to consider amendments if they could learn the exact language of what the U. S. wants in the Indian proposal. Gross has had no contact with the Indians on the subject.

Rights Bill Is Sealed In Helium-Filled Case At National Archives

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—The official parchment copy of the Bill of Rights-the first 10 Amendments to the Constitution—has been sealed in helium-filled glass case designed to preserve it permanently.

The Constitution and the Declaration of Independence were sealed in similar cases last year. All three will be put on permanent exhibition in the National Archives Building on Dec. 15—the 161st anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights.

The announcement was made today by the Archivist and the National Bureau of Standards, which developed the preservative casing.

Each manuscript page is sealed between panes of glass in an air-tight bond. The space between the panes of glass is filled with helium, lighter-than-air gas used in balloons. The humidity is controlled, and special filters and lamps keep out harmful light rays.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—Allen T. West, St. Louis stock broker who died last Aug. 31, left an estate valued in excess of two million dollars, an inventory filed in probate court revealed today.

West, 80 at the time of his death, was a special partner in the firm of G. H. Walker & Co.

Sabres Build Six-Day Toll To 16 MIGs

SEOUL, Sunday, Nov. 23—(AP)—U. S. Sabrejets blasted another MIG-15 Saturday for 16 confirmed kills in six straight days of victory over the Russian-built Communist interceptors.

The Fifth Air Force reported a second MIG was probably destroyed Saturday in a dogfight about 10 miles south of the Yalu River boundary of Manchuria. It last was seen streaking eastward in flames. The confirmed kill was in the same area.

The battlefront was quiet. Chinese patrols maintained light pressure against South Korean positions in the Sniper Ridge area of the Central Sector.

The Air Force, in its weekly assessment of punishment inflicted on the Reds, announced 15 MIGs were destroyed during the period ended Friday—as against the loss of one Sabre in air combat and two to operational troubles. One MIG was probably destroyed and four damaged.

The Air Force said two propeller-driven Allied planes were shot down by Communist ground gunners.

Far East Air Forces in Tokyo reported that the two Sabre pilots who lost their planes operationally were rescued by helicopters.

Allied warplanes struck heavily at Communist supply lines and transport during the week. The weekly report said 765 trucks were destroyed in North Korea — the highest total since last January.

At an east coast base, Gen. James A. Van Fleet told an audience that the Republic of Korea army holds a major part of the battle line and absorbs most of the losses among Allied troops.

The U. S. Eighth Army commander spoke at ceremonies formally activating the new ROK 12th and 15th Divisions.

Boy's Mistake Saves Six Persons' Lives

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22—(AP)—"Sorry, wrong address," the delivery boy shouted and hurried back to his truck after learning a new garbage can he carried was not for the Frank Volpe household.

The boy wouldn't have been sorry at all had he known his doorbell ringing may have saved six persons' lives.

Aroused from bed, Volpe smelled gas, found his three youngest daughters unconscious in their beds and his wife and oldest daughter, 16, breathing laboriously in their sleep and difficult to awake.

A police rescue squad gave oxygen to the family, and later a repair crew located the gas line leak.

Boy's Arm Wrenched Off In Clothes Dryer

HOUSTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—A spin dryer at the school laundry yesterday caught Bobby Loving's right arm and wrenched it off.

"Please don't tell my dad—it will worry him too much," Bobby 15, told junior high school coach Bert Butaud as he was being rushed to a hospital.

Bobby had been helping wash athletic equipment. Butaud said the boy apparently stumbled and thrust his arm into the dryer.

Doctors said the coach probably saved Bobby's life by applying a tourniquet to stop the bleading.

MoPac Sunshine Minstrel Show Shaping Up for December 10

The Missouri Pacific Sunshine Minstrels are rapidly rounding into a show that will tickle the fancy of old time Minstrel fans when they present their show on Dec. 10 at the Smith - Cotton High Schoo .

The end men will have a cute routine of jokes and songs with "Scrap Iron" Englund, "Car Toad" Jack Cross and his ukelela, "Bolt House" Bill Standard, to mention a few of the funsters. The soloists are Ernest Mulberry, Bob Mabry and "Uncle Tom" Dugan. The Missouri Pacific Choral Club will sing as will the well known Missouri Pacific Eagles of the Womens club. They will present the second part of the show which promises to be one of the best that has ever been given for the people of Sedalia.

A complete program will be announced later. The show is being directed by Tom Dugan assisted by Palmer Nichols, chief booster, and his staff of officers.

Charles Keller will have charge of the stage and lighting. Cecil Lutjen is in charge of the chorus. Herbert Berlin of the music. Bill Standard is in charge of general arrangements. Jack Greede, Dave Bell, Jerome Wolfe and Joe Toler, are ushers and R. E. Woolery is handling the stage setting.

A feature of the party was square dancing, with instruction by Don Donoth. Both the old time squares and the later styles were danced by the various sets. Jack Lobaugh, assistant chief booster, was in charge of the program.

Local Square Dance Callers Keep Dancers Stepping Lively

The square dancers straggled into the Sacred Heart gymasium Friday night, sometimes just a couple, sometimes in big groups of six or eight until the seats on the side were filled, waiting for the big event to start.

The women's full, long skirts and low necklines added charm. Some of them had narrow black velvet ribbons around their necks on which were pendents of one kind or another.

The men, too, many of them were dressed for the occasion in square dance costumes. Their shirts were bright, their little narrow ties were just as bright in constrasting colors, and some of them wore the square toed boots.

Up at one end of the room were eleven men of two square dance groups, The Country Club and the Foot 'n Fiddle Club, hooking up and trying out the loud speaker system. This was the night they were going to do the calling for the dances—their first night to see how good the local boys could really be at calling.

"I don't believe this", said somebody to a man who walked in with his attractive wife, "But I was told that if you don't like to square dance, your wife makes you come."

"That's right", said the man.

"But you look like you enjoy it so much—I don't see how you could help liking it when you appear to be having such a good time."

"I sure wouldn't come if it wasn't because she likes it so much," said the man.

"We have an argument about it every Friday night", put in the wife.

"That's right", agreed the man—there was no argument there.

The person was right about the man looking like he enjoyed square dancing. He did, indeed, and he was good at it, too.

Its the same with the gals. One of them sat on the sidelines and was ready to chew her handkerchief when her husband was about to call. He is the type who is always doing something like that and his wife nearly has a nervous breakdown for fear he isn't going to do the job well—but he always does. Somebody saved the day for her, though, for when her husband got ready to call a man came up and asked her to dance with him, she did, and she was so busy dancing she didn't have time to worry about her husband.

The first caller was Jack Cunningham, who started the dancers stepping. Then came Wes Murphy, who sang his call. The voice of Damon Hieronymus calling out "Swing the one you love the best" and added "And be sure you don't get mixed up on that, it could get you in trouble".

The men called in groups of three, with Donald Donath, Lawrence Barnett and Lee Johnson, and then Floyd Priddy, Jack McLaughlin and Kenneth Anderson.

They all did a grand job for their first attempt at the local calling stunt, and as they went along the men got into the feel of the calling, got over their first bit of stage fright and the stepping on the floor became faster and gayer.

"How those gals do kick", said a man looking on, and sure enough you could see the contrasting ruffles underneath their full skirts, or maybe it was their petticoats.

"I heard a joke", commented the man. "The way to stop yourself from worrying over anything is to get a pair of shoes that are too tight—you won't be able to think of anything else. Well", he went on, "I'll bet these people won't do any worrying in the morning—their feet will keep their mind off their worries" these square dancers wouldn't admit it if they did have foot trouble.

"We aren't so good", said one man, "But we have an awful lot of fun—" and they show it, they love every minute of it and the callers feel gratified—they are ready to call again—any time.

Corn Cobs, Oat Hulls for New Drug Family

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Corn cobs and oat hulls supply raw material for a promising new family of drugs against human and animal diseases.

These drugs are nitrofurans, made from furfural, a farm waste product. Furfural also helps make nylon stockings and other products.

One nitrofuran looks promising against kidney and bladder infections not touched by antibiotics. Another, put into chewing gum used after meals, is credited in early tests with reducing tooth decay.

Still other forms are helpful against infected wounds, burns, ulcers of the skin, eye and ear infections, and some fungus diseases. The furfural drug also is becoming a weapon against a serious poultry disease, coccidiosis.

The drugs can be made in many different forms, by slight alterations in molecular makeup, and some 270 have been created to date. They show ability to hit many different kinds of germs.

One of the newest in the family (furadantin) is tailored for internal use. It kills the majority of types of germs in kidney and bladder infections.

Dr. Charles E. Friedgood and Dr. Anthony Danza of Maimonides Hospital in Brooklyn tried it on 22 patients with urinary infections caused by a germ, bacillus proteus, that resists antibiotics and other drugs.

They said it cured six people with acute infection and eight with chronic infection and relieved symptoms in the rest although laboratory tests showed some germs still present.

Dr. Samuel Dreizen of Chicago and Dr. Tom D. Spies of Birmingham, Ala., tested the chewing gum containing a nitrofuran (furadroxyl) on children and adults highly susceptible to tooth decay.

Of 30 who chewed the gum after each meal, there were only 25 new instances of tooth decay over a year's time. Among 25 who chewed a gum, made the same but not containing the drug, there were 82 new spots of tooth decay. Among 25 who didn't chew any gum at all, there were 106 new instances of tooth decay. Results on this small group indicate the gum—not yet developed for general use—may help reduce tooth decay, they said.

Another form of the drug shows effect against some fungal infections, including ringworm and mange. Crystals of nitrofurazone are being added to poultry feed to protect or act against coccidiosis in poultry.

Purchase School Bus by Contract Commission Urges Local District

This is the fifth in a series of seven articles presented by the Democrat in an effort to acquaint the public with the recommendations contained in a report issued by the Missouri Citizens Commission for the Study of Education, entitled "Missouri Plans for Better Schools."

The report has been presented to the State Board of Education, which appointed the commission, and some of the recommendations may play an important part in any new school legislation enacted next year.

"The transportation of pupils is a necessary aspect of school operation if we are going to attempt to provide comparable educational opportunities for all of the children," states the commission in its fifth topic chapter on transportation.

With that premise in mind, it then recommends that the State Board of Education be charged with the job of establishing the standards for school transportation. It also recommends that the state provide help to the school districts in meeting their specific transportation problems and it propounds the value of purchasing buses and equipment according to the state contract system.

The commission believes that the State Board of Education, with the help of related agencies, is in the best position to determine the standards for school transportation. It believes, too, that the school districts should conform to those standards in order to promote safety and efficiency.

In order to enforce safety standards, the study group recommends that legal provisions be established for such items as state licenses for school bus operators, regular physical examinations for those operators, and a determination of their minimum and maximum ages. It reports that driving standards for school bus operators have been improved somewhat by recent legislation and that Missouri has not established a bad record of safety in school transportation. Nevertheless, the provisions mentioned are considered necessary for guaranteeing an even better record.

Similarly, buses and equipment should meet state standards to insure safety, dependability and convenience for pupils. Proper maintenance should also be made to meet state standards.

The commission states that the State Board of Education can help the districts in yet another way by making available to them any consultative services needed in solving individual transportation problems, and in planning and organizing training classes for transportation service personnel.

The study group reports that questionnaires from school administrators all over the state pointed up conc usively the importance of selecting bus drivers carefully. Since well - trained drivers may not always be available, the state should assume leadership in providing that training.

School districts should be provided by the state with insurance, especially for a blanket policy covering al school children transported in district owned buses. Arrangements should be made to purchase such coverage on a bid basis, states the commission. Such coverage would be paid for by deducting at the state level the prorata costs for each of the transporting districts.

Districts should be encouraged to own their own buses and equipment, the commission believes, since it is usually more economical and efficient to do so. It reports that school officials also point out that the school has greater control over the operation of its own buses and can arrange more easily for their use for special activities.

The commision feels that the State Board of Education should develop uniform records and report forms for the districts to use in keeping track of transportation costs, guaranteeing efficiency and also making it possible for accurate cost studies. These studies could be used by the state to discover economies for the districts.

Under the contract plan recommended by the commission for purchase of buses and equipment by the districts, bid prices would be submitted to the State Board of Education by manufacturers of bus bodies, chassis, and major equipment items. Then local boards of education would pay no more than the bid prices, although it would be free to pay less if desired. Nor would this plan have any effect on determining from what company or dealer the district would purchase such equipment.

"The commission discovered," states the report, "that schools in some other states are able to purchase transportation equipment for considerably less money than Missouri schools have been paying for the same equipment. In some cases the difference has been as much as $1000 per bus. It was discovered also that schools in Missouri pay varying prices for identical equipment, the range being more than $1000 in some cases."

The commission feels that the contract plan would eliminate such price variations and put purchasing on a more equitable basis.

The State Board od Education should also make available to districts wishing to purchase needed busees, especially those districts needing two or more buses at the same time, the funds with which to buy them. The cost would be deducted gradually from the district funds in reimbursement.

(Next week: Business administration, involving efficient techniques for a school accounting system.)

Rhee Expects Ike To Bring Peace, Unity to Korea

AN EAST COAST BASE, Korea (AP)—South Korean President Syngman Rhee said today he expects Dwight Eisenhower "to bring peace and unity to Korea."

"Eisenhower was a professional soldier so he understands all about war," Rhee told thousands of South Korean soldiers during ceremonies formally activating two new Republic of Korea divisions. "He also was a diplomat and therefore understands the problem of diplomacy and statesmanship.

"I expect General Eisenhower to bring peace to Korea. We are depending on President-elect Eisenhower."

Gen. James A. Van Fleet, another seaker, said the ROK army holds the major art of the battleline in Korea and takes the biggest losses among Allied troops.

1,000 Volunteers To Hopkins Today To Clean Up Ruins

HOPKINS, Mo. (AP) — More than 1,000 volunteer workers are expected here Sunday to clean up the debris left by the tornado which struck this town of 800 a week ago.

The city of Maryville, which took the lead last spring in aid for the flood stricken town of Craig, Mo., is sponsoring the Sunday effort. Cooperating are the Chamber of Commerce, the city, and the headquarters of the 129th field artillery, Missouri National Guard.

An appeal has been issued for volunteers from throughout Nodaway County to aid in clearing away debris and fallen trees. Maryville is sending two dump trucks, and Mayor Clyde Roberts of that city is bringing a flat bed truck. The women of Parnell, Mo., will operate a canteen to feed the workers.

Mayor Stanley Dale of St. Joseph is sending his city building inspector here to check on the safety of the school building. City officials said today buildings believed to have suffered little damage were found to have serious structural defects.

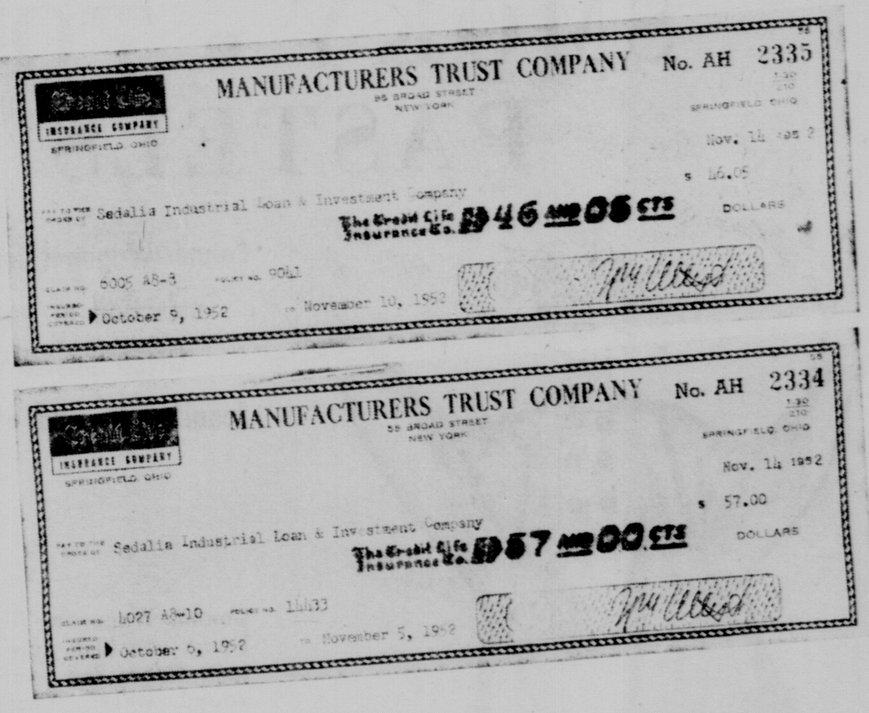
BE SAFE WHEN YOU BORROW MONEY!
When "Industrial" says . . .
"INSURED LOANS AT NO EXTRA COST"
. . . . here is what we're talking about!



These checks represent payments on each of two loans for a period of one month. Both borrowers have been totally disabled for many months. It will be many months before either of them can return to work, according to statements made by their respective doctors. One was injured while at work, the other has a lingering illness. We have many other cases of total disability, and in all of them the payments will be kept up until the disability ends. These borrowers did not pay extra for this protection.

Imagine the peace of mind these borrowers and their families enjoy because "Industrial" provides this valuable protection. It can be yours at no extra cost when you borrow money at "Industrial", as well as life insurance which pays the unpaid balance of the loan in the event of death, thus leaving the bereaved family free from the obligation to us.

"Industrial" is the place to obtain cash quickly when you need it. No embarrassing investigations or delay. A plan to suit your needs and your income.

Cut In State Government Costs Asked

Appropriations for Missouri state government have increased 85 per cent since 1945, rising from approximately $350 million a biennium to nearly $650 million, an increase of $300 million, it was disclosed by a study issued today by Missouri Public Expenditure Survey.

If the rapid expansion in cost of state government is not curtailed, the Survey warned, new or increased taxes may be required. With taxes — local, state and federal — taking more than 30 per cent of the national income, the Survey said that state government should be seeking ways to avoid new taxes and, if possible, reduce present taxes rather than to permit continued expansion. The Survey suggested a six-point program for checking growth of state costs.

The research organization's study revealed that state appropriations of funds received from the federal government now, for the first time, exceed appropriations from the state general revenue fund, from which major general functions of state government are provided.

Biennial appropriations of federal funds have shown a larger increase since 1945 than appropriations from any other fund, rising from $72 million to $156 million, the Survey said.

The Survey warned that the increasing use of federal funds in Missouri "is illustrative of the general threat of federal dominance of state government of which cognizance was taken in a resolution by the 1952 Conference of State Governors."

The Survey reported that the state departments having largest increases in appropriations since 1945 are Health and Welfare with an increase of $124 million and Education with an increase of $72 million. The Survey added that in 1945 these two departments were alloted 55 per cent of all state appropriations which then totaled about $350 million and that today they receive 60 per cent of state appropriations totaling about $650 million.

The Survey's six-point program for checking state costs includes: Establishment of a study commission to make recommendations for improving efficiency and organization of state government; stricter laws governing welfare programs; avoidance of new state programs and unwarranted expansion of existing ones; confining major construction to essential projects; keeping state appropriations for current purposes within current revenues; and stricter control by the Legislature over earmarked funds.

The Survey also suggested adoption of a Hoover Commission recommendation that Congress authorize a study of federal - state relations with a view of placing them "on a sensible, economical and controllable basis." The Survey said it made the suggestion "in view of the increasing threat of federal dominance of state affairs."

Services Plan Early Release At Christmas

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22—(AP)—The armed forces will speed up the discharge of many men whose terms of service are nearing an end, so that they may get home for Christmas.

The Defense Department issued tonight a summary of plans for each of the armed forces, which said:

Army personnel scheduled for discharge between Dec. 20 and Jan. 5, with some exceptions, will be released not later than Dec. 19. This applies only to personnel in the United States or its territories. Service personnel returning from overseas during that time will be released "as soon as possible" after arrival in the U. S.

Three exceptions are made to the pre-Christmas release policy: 1 Enlisted reserve personnel who want to complete their reserve obligation can be retained until their terms of service expire; 2 draftees who voluntarily extend their active duty one year under the reserve provisions of the Selective Service Act; 3 draftees eligible for early release because of Korean service, who must complete 21 months of active duty.

Navy enlisted men of the regular Navy and reserve who normally would be eligible for release between Dec. 20 and Jan. 6, will be released not later than Dec. 20. This does not apply to men who are being retired.

The Air Force said it "will follow substantially a policy of releasing airmen and officers early so that they may arrive at home for Christmas week." Those released will include all personnel who normally would be released prior to Jan. 5.

The Marine Corps will discharge, before Dec. 19, personnel otherwise due for release in the Dec. 20-Jan. 5 period in the U. S. or territories.

Public Library Notes—

Flower Show School Ends, But Can Continue Through Books

The study of flower arranging was one of the courses studied by garden club members at the Flower Show School held this week at the Public Library. Among its many books on gardening, the library offers further study on this subject in "Flower Craft," by Roberts, and "Design in Flower Arrangement," by Arms.

Another new book sure to prove inspiring to arrangers is "The Complete Book on Dried Arrangements," by Underwood. No other book tells so much about preparing and using dried materials ,the newest hobby of flower arrangers everywhere.

Mrs. Underwood offers a wealth of suggestions for distinguished Christmas arrangements for decorating on other special occasions with dried flowers, foliages and driftwood. She also includes a chapter on making pressed-flower pictures, trays and wall panels, with seeds, pods, cones and shellwork.

Although their gardens may lie dormant and covered with snow this winter, most gardeners enjoy studying and planning for an even more charming array of blooms in the coming summer. "Flower Garden for the Amateur," by Hottes, is a volume designed to help even a beginner achieve that desire.

An excellent new book by professional landscape artists is "Color and Design for Every Garden," with special emphasis placed on a successsion of colorful flowers throughout the season.

A favorite of many gardeners, because of its easy culture, the annual, is given a thorough study in "How to Grow Annuals," by Robbins.

Whether you have hundreds of roses, or are thinking of putting in a simple rose garden for the first time, "Anyone Can Grow Roses," by Dr. Cynthia Westcott, is an invaluable handbook to consult. Dr. Westcott, one of the best known plant pathologists, tells how to raise what is probably the world's most popular flower with a minimum of expense and trouble. Another garden specialty is the subject of "The New Book of Lilies," by De Graaff, with color illustrations of some of the new and beautiful lilies available to gardeners.

Niece of Sedalian Gets First Sheet Of Christmas Seals

The first sheet of 1952 Christmas Seals to be distributed in the United States went to the niece of a Sedalian.

Sharon Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Carter, Wichita, Kan., received the sheet from the artist who drew the design—Tom Darling—after he autographed the sheet for her. The presentation was made in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Carter is a sister of Mrs. Victor Scott, 1111 W. Broadway, Sedalia.

The Carters were enroute to New York and had stopped for a few days in Washington. Sharon was in the lobby several times and the 12-year old attracted attention of the artist, who was also stopping at the hotel.

When it came time to have the formal ceremonies for the sale of the first Christmas Seals, Artist Darling asked that the "very attractive little girl" be invited to take part. She was called by hotel officials from her room and Darling signed his name on the first sheet of the stamps and presented it to her.

Quake Gives Californians Severe Jolt

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22 (AP)—A midnight earthquake shook and twisted a 500-mile strip of the California coast last night and early today from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

It broke windows, twisted doors, caused the partial collapse of a house, rearranged dishes and other small objects, and frightened people over a wide area, but no injuries or major damage were reported.

Quick surveys of the most severely shaken towns disclosed no cracked buildings.

The early movement started at 11:47 p.m. (1:47 a.m. CST) in the areas of San Luis Obispo, San Migeual and Paso Robles, and continued for several minutes. Some people said they felt it for half an hour and seismographs registered for three-quarters of an hour.

Some windows were broken in San Luis Obispo. A sleeping man fell from his rocking chair in the Monterey - Carmel area. Plaster was crocked and pictures fell in some San Miguel homes. A Paso Robles store lost three bottles of liquor which toppled from a shelf.

Many areas described the quake as a rolling movement, but it registered as a sharp shock in Salinas. It was moderate in the San Francisco bay area.

British Diplomat Sadly Prepares To Leave US

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (AP) — Sir Oliver Franks, British ambassador to all 48 of the United States, neared the end of his action-packed American career today with the conviction that the world is a little safer now than when he came here 4½ years ago.

A British - American partnership able to withstand even the shock of a clash over recognition of Communist China is, in Frank's opinion, the foundation of this greater world security.

The crisis of Communism with all its risks may go on for many years, he feels, but so long as Britain and America, the core of the coalition of free nations, stick together on the main issues, the Soviets may well hesitate to press their designs to the danger point.

Franks is going home next week. Old friends who have stopped in at his office in the British Embassy have found him in the mood of recollection and summary that goes with trunk-packing, and apparently a little sad about leaving.

Miracle Saves C. D. Warren

Train, Auto Collide Here; Car's Driver Only Scratched

An automobile, with its driver still inside, was struck by a freight train at a Sedalia crossing Friday afternoon and carried for a full city block, the driver escaped with only a small scratch on the back of his left hand.

Onlookers agreed that had either end of the car dipped and touched the ground as it was being carried along by the train, it would have been thrown to the side or crushed beneath the engine. Only perfect balance saved its driver.

He is C. D. Warren, 79, route 3, who failed to see the oncoming M-K-T freight train southbound at the 16th and Ohio crossing and drove in front of it. Warren was going west on 16th. The collision occurred at 3:17 p. m.

It Happened Too Fast

"I heard the train whistle," he said, "but before I knew it, it was right on top of me."

Warren's car, a 1938 Chevrolet coupe, was completely smashed in on the left side, and the left rear tire was punctured.

Wayne Daugherty, 1102 South Kentucky, who was washing windows at Ernie's Drive Inn next to the crossing, said the train reached the crossing a split second before Warren drove in front of it. The train brakes were applied but did not lock until the train reached 17th and Osage. Daugherty said the warning lights were flashing, the bell was ringing, and the train was blowing its whistle.

Two Gillespie ambulances raced to the scene but left as soon as it was learned they were not needed.

Upon Warren's request, the car was towed to Chamberlain's Garage and held there until arrangements can be made for repairs. The garage office said that apparently no damage had been done to the frame or axles.

Warren was taken to his home by his son-in-law, T. W. Aulgur, 900 South Grand, whom Warren telephoned shortly after the accident.

Doctor Not Needed

Warren said he did not need the services of a doctor and appeared only shaken slightly, beside the scratch on his hand.

The train engineer was C. L. Maupin, of New Franklin, the fireman H. A. Oswald, Boonville, and the conductor Thad Good, New Franklin. The through freight was on its regular run between New Franklin and Parsons. It was delayed nine minutes by the accident, but later continued on its way.

Cartwright School Parent-Teacher Club

The Cartwright school Parent-Teacher Club program for November was by Mr. and Mrs. Siril Todd. The teacher, Mrs. J. E. Kent, introduced the entertainers, and Joyce Stephens led the audience in singing "America", and repeating the pledge of allegiance.

Barbara Salmons, accompanied by Don Sands on the guitar, sang, "It May be Silly," "Married by the Bible and Divorced by the Law," and "Jambalaya," while Don Sands sang, "Almost," and "Sing Her a Love Song."

Mrs. Emery Meyers and Mrs. Sena Schutt gave a comic costume skit, "There's One Born Every Minute." Mrs. Meyers favored the audience with two comedy songs, and Mrs. Schutt gave an account of a novice's trip to a ball game. At the conclusion of these, Mrs. Meyers made a plea for donors to the blood bank on it's next visit, Dec. 5 and 6.

In conclusion, Barbara Salmons sang, "Hole in the Bottom of the Sea," and "Ridin' Old Paint," and Don Sands, "River of Love."

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

The December meeting will be the regular Christmas program.

Civic Clubs Join to Raise Park Money

By Mrs. Harold Priess

CALIFORNIA — Seventy-four members of the Chamber of Commerce, Lions and Kiwanis Club have undertaken the job of securing funds for the purchase and improvement of the railroad lake property which they hope to make into a city park.

The drive, which is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, is to raise $7,500, which is an average of about $3 per person throughout the city. About $4,000 of the goal will be spent for the 32 acres of the tract which will be retained as a park after the rest is sold. The remaining money will be used for clearing the grounds, and providing picnic facilities, some work on the lake proper and providing a road around the lake.

Plans include the provision of city lights and water. Quarters for a caretaker are not included at present but will be on the list of later improvements.

Bond Proctor is chairman of the solicitors.

Officer Pressley's "Safety Circus", a show in which trained dogs dramatize the slogans "Walk Safe — Ride Safe — Play Safe", appeared in the California school auditorium Tuesday, Nov. 11. Eight dogs trained by traffic officer Ernest E. Pressley, of Charlotte, N. C., are put through a series of difficult and vivid lessons in safety.

The traffic officer has organized a junior traffic safety club numbering more than 800,000 members. Children become eligible for membership after passing an examination on traffic safety given following the show. A certificate of membership is sent to the children passing the test.

The show is being sent on a 20-state tour by the American Trucking Association and is spending three weeks in a 15-city tour of Missouri.

C. M. Kroeck, chairman of the bicycle safety program sponsored by the Lions Club of California, has issued safety cards to the approximately 200 bicycle riders in the California schools.

Miss Westermier Recently Wed To Don Hopkins

At 9 o'clock in the morning, Saturday, November 8, Miss Agnes Westermeir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Westermier, 2400 South Kentucky, was married to Mr. Donald Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hopkins, route 2, Sedalia, at Sacred Heart Church, in a double ring ceremony.

The high mass was performed by the Rev. A. J. Brunswick, pastor, before an altar decorated with white chrysanthemums.

As the guests were being seated Mrs. Earl Paxton, organist, played a medley of music. She accompanied Miss Annette Moser, who sang, "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" and "Ave Maria."

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of traditional white satin, fashioned with a tight fitting bodice with a square cut neck and long sleeves pointed at the wrist. The skirt was designed with a shaped peplum which was edged with a deep flounce of white Chantilly lace. The long full skirt, worn over crinolines, lengthened into an aisle-wide train. Her long fingertip veil of illusion, edged with a wide band of Chantilly lace, cascaded from a tiara of seed pearls which matched the cluster of seed pearls at each side of the square neck. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried her first communion prayer book which was topped with red roses and satin streamers.

Miss Rose Mary Westermier was her sister's maid of honor. She wore a fuschia satin and tulle dress designed with a lace insert on the bodice and a detachable satin and net fichu. The closely fitting bodice of satin held the very full tulle floor length skirt, which was trimmed with two rows of tulle ruffling. Her headdress was a satin bandeaus of fuschia with a small cluster of pompons on one side and she carried a colonial bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Herbert Martin, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Martha Chmelir, Cole Camp, were bridesmaids. Their dresses were designed like the honor attendant's but were in rose and gold. Both wore a satin bandeau to match their dress and carried colonial bouquets.

Jane Westermier, younger sister of the bride, and Hazel Hepburn, niece of the bridegroom, wore white organdy formals and threw rose petals over their shoulders.

Mr. Joseph Westermier, brother of the bride, La Monte, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Leo Westermier, brother of the bride, Mora, and Mr. Mike Hopkins, brother of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Westermier, chose to wear a tan dress with pearl accessories and a white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a pink print dress with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Sarah Martin, grandmother of the bridegroom, was attired in a black dress complimented with a white carnation corsage.

A dinner was served at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents to approximately 50 guests. Baskets filled with white chrysanthemums and red roses were placed throughout the home.

A reception was held that evening.

Misses Gladys Kuttenkuller and Miss Florence Martin served at the reception. The wedding cake was baked by the bride's mother.

For traveling the bride wore a dress of aqua corduroy with black accessories and a white carnation corsage.

They are now at home at 828 West Sixth.

Be sure to save the big wishbone from the Thanksgiving turkey (hope you have been saving wishbones from fried chicken all summer). Wash well and when dry sand it a little. Now give it a coat of gold or silver paint. Paint "Best Wishes" on it in red paint or even nail polish. If the bone is too small for the greeting, tie it on your Christmas package with holiday ribbon and it will say "Best Wishes" for you in a new fashion.

Ola Fay Ragar, Larry Turner Wed In Home Ceremony

Miss Ola Fay Ragar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Ragar, Green Ridge, and Mr. Larry Arthur Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Turner, also of Green Ridge, were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at 7 o'clock in the evening Saturday, November 15, at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The Rev. William Morgan performed the ceremony in front of the large fireplace flanked on either side with tall candelabra holding burning tapers. The mantle arrangement was of chrysanthemums, gladioli and roses.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Palmer Nichols accompanied her sister, Mrs. Donald Anderson, as she sang, "I Love You Truly". As Miss Mary Moon, Houstonia, lighted the candles Mr. Richard Turner, brother of the bridegroom, played Debussy's "Claire de Lune". Mr. Turner played the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of navy sheer crepe, with navy and rose striped taffeta trim. Her accessories were also of navy and she wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Beverly Clevenger, only cousin of the bride, attended as bridesmaid. She was attired in a suit dress of bottle green and black accessories. Her corsage was of talisman roses.

A-2c Carl Swearngin, formerly of La Monte, now stationed at Forbes Air Base, Topeka, Kan., served as best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a dress of black crepe with small pink rosebud trim and complimented with a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Turner, mother of the bridegroom, wore a dress of gunmetal taffeta and a red carnation corsage.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the dining room. The lace covered table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with pink roses and topped with a miniature bridal couple. After the couple had cut the first slice of cake the remainder was cut and served by Mrs. Donald Anderson and Mrs. Bert Clevenger. Mrs. Carl Ragar presided at the punch bowl and Miss Beverly Clevenger was in charge of the guest book. Miss Marjorie Helphrey assisted in serving.

The couple left on a short wedding trip to Kansas City and Topeka and upon their return will be temporarily located at the home of the bridegroom's parents, until their home, which is located on route 3, has been redecorated.

Both the bride and bridegroom are former Green Ridge High School students.

McDowel Music Featured Here Friday Night

The Helen G. Steele Music Club with Mrs. Louis Isgur as chairman, presented a program of McDowel music on Nov. 21 at 8:30 in the evening honoring Mrs. McDowel on her 95th birthday anniversary at the same hour the entire nation was celebrating in her honor.

Mrs. McDowel is the wife of Edward McDowel, the justly renowned American composer who started his work in a log cabin in Peterborough, N. H., far removed from any other habitation.

The ideal of Edward McDowel and his wife was to give a share of what he, as a creativeworker, had been blessed with and they made great plans.

In 1907, the year before his death, they deeded to the Edward Dowel Association their farm house, the 200 acres of surrounding land and the famous log cabin.

After his death, Marian McDowel went valiantly forth to play McDowel music and tell the story of the colony. For the next 30 years she appeared in 400 cities and towns, raising more than $100-000 for the colony's upkeep. It was about 25 years ago that she was a visitor to the Helen G. Steele Music Club.

Today, 45 years later, the colony consists of more than 600 acres of cleared pine land, with 24 beautiful studios and dormitories, besides colony hall, where breakfast, lunch and supper are served. The colony is open to all creative workers: poets, playwrights, novelists, painters, sculpturers, etchers and composers.

For a foundation as wonderful as this, it is most fitting that the club pay tribute with the following McDowel Music:

A trio composed of Mrs. Robert Seelen, Mrs. Richard Sklar and Miss Esther Meisenheimer, accompanied by Mrs. Beach, sang "To A Wild Rose." Ann Marques, student of Mrs. Charles Patterson, played on the piano, "Witches Dance"; Marilyn Goldman, student of Miss Mabel DeWitt, piano solo, "Alla Tarentalla;" Shelly Morrow, student of Mss Mabel DeWitt, piano solo, "Scotch Poem;" Miss Alphonsine Miles, accompanied by Mrs. Henly Salveter, sang "Beaming Eyes," Jane Knight, student of Mrs. J. W. Watts, piano solo, "Hungarian;" Valgene Hayworth, student of Mrs. Jewel Harter Thomas, piano solo, "Concert Atitude;" and Miss Marjorie Liebel, accompanied by Mrs. Salveter, sang "Yellow Daisy" and "Clover."

Elizabeth Sipes, Pvt. W. Stonecipher Marriage Is Solemnized At Lincoln

At 12:15 noon Sunday, November 16, Miss Elizabeth Sipes, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Sipes, Lincoln, exchanged marriage vows with Pvt. William C. Stonecipher, Ft. Riley, Kan., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mel W. Stonecipher, East St. Louis, Ill., at the Methodist Church in Lincoln.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the bride's father before a chancel setting of baskets filled with assorted colored chrysanthemums, ferns and burning tapers in tall candelabra entwined with huckelberry.

Preceding the ceremony Mrs. H. G. Brady, Cole Camp, played "I Come to Thee" and accompanied Miss Arleene Feutz, St. Louis, former college classmate of the bride, as she sang, "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer". The traditional wedding marches were used.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Donald Sipes, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of white velvet. The fitted bodice featured a V-shape neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. She carried a white Bible adorned with a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Mrs. James DeGroff, Kansas City, Kan., was matron of honor and Miss Lily May Sipes, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They wore dresses of steel gray and blue respectively. Mrs. DeGroff's corsage was of bronze chrysanthemums and Miss Sipes' was wine chrysanthemums.

Miss Judy Stonecipher, sister of the bridegroom, lighted the candles preceding the ceremony.

Mr. Terry Bob Stonecipher, East St. Louis, Ill., served his brother as best man and Mr. James DeGroff, Kansas City, Kan., was groomsman.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Sipes chose a green pastel dress with black accessories. Mrs. Stonecipher, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in a gray faille suit trimmed with black velvet and black accessories. Both had chrysanthemum corsages.

A dinner was served at one o'clock to members of the wedding party, immediate families and out of town guests at the home of the bride's parents. The home was decorated with bouquets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. A five tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple centered the table.

A reception was held from 2 until 4 that afternoon. Mrs. R. C. McCandless, Lincoln, and Mrs. A. A. Mahnken, Ionia, served refreshments to the guests.

For traveling the bride wore a blue and white checked suit with blue accessories complimented with a white chrysanthemum corsage.

The bride was a senior at Central College, Fayette, and a member of Alpha Pi sorority.

The bridegroom attended Central College before entering service. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Chi fraternity, Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary national pre-med fraternity, Phi Rho Cappa, philosophy honorry fraternity.

They will reside at Manhattan, Kan.

Out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Mel W. Stonecipher, parents of the bridegroom, Mr. Terry Stonecipher, Miss Judy Stonecipher, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stonecipher, grandparents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. McPherson, Mrs. Leo Johnson and Mrs. William Rogers, all of East St. Louis, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Des Combs and Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Young Warsaw Musician Comes To Music Club

Jerry K. Hart of Warsaw, student of Kansas University, Lawrence, Kan., will be presented in voice recital by the Helen G. Steele Music Club on Wednesday, November 26, at 2 p. m.

Mr. Hart at 19 has won recognition as a singer, pianist and composer. He began the study of the violin at the age of five and played the piano at an even earlier age. His talent for composition developed along with his talent for the piano. His study of voice began only a few years ago. Except for short periods of study with other teachers, his mother has directed his musical training.

The young artist has won highest awards in all contests in which he has entered. For the past two summers he attended the Midwest Music Camp on the campus at the University of Kansas. This past summer he was presented in the first advanced student recital, this distinction being reserved for only those students with highest degree of musical preparation.

He received the honor of hearing his own composition, "Out of Depths Have I Cried Unto Thee", sung by the 200 voice chorus. Prof. Clayton Krehbiel, choral director and former assistant conductor of the Robert Shaw Corale, praised Hart's composition as ranking with the work of professional and recognized composers.

Jerry K. Hart

Mrs. B. F. Hart will accompany him. A luncheon will be served at 12 noon, with reservations to be in by noon Monday, by calling 162.

Mrs. Al Mines is chairman of the day.

The cleanest skin going

by Bernice Peck

It's bonny, a skin that looks alive, brightly alive, under a gauze of make-up—even without make-up. It's old news now that much of what is pretty or unpretty about a complexion has its origins far below the surface, the skin acting as a frank reporter on internal order or strife. If everything's tidy with your own basic apparatus, then don't let externals swipe your skin's freshness and clarity. Externals like dirt, dirt that doesn't always show but always damages. (If you had a dime for every skin that goes to bed cleansed—but only half-clean—your income tax would be astronomical.)

Dermatologists have said that probably half the lesser skin disorders they see are the result of optimistic, vague cleansing methods, the kind that remove some make-up and grime, leave behind just enough to clog those tiny exits, the pores. And these pores after a while of clogging, are, alas, no longer tiny. Then a skin's color and tone turn gloomy, it becomes more and more disposed to minor grievances, spotting, blackheads, even infections. Its owner begins to think of hers, pitifully, as a problem skin, although she herself manufactured the problem.

Actually your skin, any skin, can be flawlessly clean without an arm-long row of bottles and jars for doing daily business. It's not how many preparations you use. It's how consistently, how properly, you use three, two or even the one that does your job. As for the one, it soon might be something new called White Sable, something you'll be seeing and hearing about all over a few weeks from now. Its makers, Revlon, have had both versions of White Sable in and out of their testing laboratories for lo these three years. Object of each return trip—to make it even better, make it do even more, than the time before. Finally, they seem satisfied that each is wonderful for its particular purpose, and here, partially, is why:

It is a silky, milk-white balm that first cleanses, then softens, then protects perfectly any type of skin. Its combination of elements makes it gentler even than necessary for the dry, baby-thin skin, effectual enough for the oiliest. And it functions as perfectly for any skin on the in-between list: the normal, the easily disturbed, the undecided (that irritating combination of dry-and-oily areas). Every possible factor has been considered, from skin personality and climatic conditions to the small but sweet pleasures of actual use. White Sable goes on with a silky luxury, with a delightful fragrance. It takes a moment to do its job. You can wipe it off with tissue or wash it off with a cloth and cool water. What film remains is benign to any skin facing any temperature. That's one version of White Sable, its price, $1.50.* The other has all the same wonderful qualities plus an entirely new idea for a cleansing preparation (the addition of hormones to replenish the precious natural supply that birthdays can cost the skin). This version, $2.25.* Either is an easygoing plastic-flasked traveler. Either is not only ready—but able—to make your skin clean as can be. And a completely, constantly clean skin is only a few steps away from a beautiful complexion.

Hurley Makes Key Play

Missouri Upsets Kansas Applecart With 1-Point Win

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 22 (AP) — End Jack Hurley deflected and then intercepted a pass midway of the fourth quarter to set up the winning touchdown as the underdog Missouri Tigers whipped the Kansas Jayhawks 20-19 in a sensational Big Seven Conference football game today.

Tony Scardino, Missouri quarterback, who cost the Tigers a touchdown early in the game by fumbling on the Kansas one-yard line, scored the winner on a keeper play from the one-foot mark after full-back Nick Carras had Carras had charged too fast to get the ball on an intended handoff from Scardino. It was Tony's first touchdown in two seasons of play.

Paul Fuchs, the Tigers' place-kicking specialist, connected on two points after touchdown in the second quarter that gave Missouri a 14-6 halftime lead.

Gil Reich, former West Point defensive back, made only one of the three Kansas attempts for extra points. That made the difference in the victory.

Kansas' hopes suffered a decisive blow in the second quarter when Reich left the game with a broken finger on his right hand. He had replaced Charlie Hoag at left halfback. Hoag's lame knee was injured again on the second play of the game and he saw no more action.

Kansas In Game All Way

Missouri was the sharper team most of the day before a homecoming crowd of 26,000, but the Kansans weren't out of it until Reich's attempt for a field goal from the Tigers' 22 missed with 14 seconds remaining. And seconds before the Reich kick, Jerry Bogue lost a touchdown when Missouri defender Bill Fessler jarred the ball from Bogue's hands as he tried to catch a pass from Jerry Robertson.

Bill Rowekamp, a teammate of Reich's on the 1950 West Point team, wheeled 82 yards on a quick-opening play early in the second quarter to match a touchdown by Bob Brandeberry that had Kansas ahead 6-0. Fuchs kicked the point for Missouri while Reich's attempt for Kansas was blocked by Terry Roberts.

Missouri scored its second touchdown a minute before the half ended with Carras crashing over from the one.

The Jayhawks bolted into the lead 19-14 on a 52-yard scoring play from Robertson to end Jerry Taylor in the third period. The Jayhawks had gotten into the game a few minutes earlier when Robertson sneaked over from the one and Reich kicked the point.

Tigers End Up 5-5

Missouri ended its season with a 5-5 record, all of its victories coming over Big Seven foes. Kansas won seven and lost three and had a 3-3 conference mark.

Rowekamp, a 191-pound senior from Marietta, O., was the workhorse of the day. He picked up 149 yards on 14 rushes and came in to play defensive end when Kansas was on the move in the fourth quarter.

Missouri had a slight advantage in the statistics, picking up 262 yards rushing to 182 for Kansas. The Jayhawks led in first downs 16-14 and out-passed the Missourians 168 yards to 79.

Little Jimmy Hook, a senior, and sophomore Terry Roberts were only a couple of the Missouri heroes in the hard-knocking game that saw players helped off the field in droves late in the contest.

Reich, before he left the game, Robertson and defensive guard Bob Hantla stood out for Kansas.

Trojans Nip UCLA To Win Rose Bowl Bid

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 22 (AP)—The mighty Trojans of Southern California struck down undefeated UCLA today on two electrifying, long range plays and won the right to represent the Coast conference in the Rose Bowl against the Big Ten on the strength of a 14-12 victory.

The game-cracking plays, staged before a crowd of 96,869 fans gathered in Memorial Coliseum and millions of television fans around the nation, left the watchers and the fighting Bruins gasping.

The first was a 70-yard run and lateral—a 10-yard run by right halfback Al Carmichael and a lateral to left halfback Jimmy Sears, who ran 60 yards through free air for the Trojans' first touchdown in the second period.

The second came on a 72-yard burst on an intercepted pass made by All-America defensive tackle candidate, Elmer Willhoite, who moved his beefy 210 pound frame down the sidelines to the UCLA eight yard line.

The Trojans, trailing 12-7 at this stage, scored four plays later on a short flip from the four-yard line by Sears to Carmichael.

That sank the Uclans, their otherwise perfect record of eight straight wins, their two-year reign over the warriors of Troy, and send the Trojans marching on to Pasadena for the 11th time in the history of the school.

The formal announcement that places USC in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day won't be made official for a week. But the screaming fans of the cardinal and gold didn't wait for such protocol. They nearly tore down the vast stadium with a roar when the final gun sounded.

Versailles Nips California Five By Three Points

Sophomore Kent Hall bucketed 27 points, 17 from the free-throw line, to ramrod Versailles to a hair-raising 58-55 basketball victory over California Friday night in a Tri-County League contest played at Versailles.

Hall and his mates used the foul route to springboard the triumph. As a team they failed to cash-in on only three free-toss opportunities, and Hall missed only once in 18 efforts. From the field California outhit the winners by a 18-14 margin but lost the game on free-throws, 30-19.

The game was close all the way. Versailles led by one at the end of the first quarter; the score was tied at the half; the winners owned a two-point edge at the three-quarter mark; and came home by a three-point margin.

This tilt, the first in the league for Versailles, gives it a 4-2 record for the year. Coach Pete Curl's team next plays Tipton, there, Tuesday night.

California's B-team outclassed Versailles, 39-23, in the curtain-raiser with Cram setting the pace for the victors with 15 points. Chamberlain was high for the losers with nine.

Gophers Battle Wisconsin To Tie

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 22 (AP) — Minnesota battled favored Wisconsin to a spine-tingling 21-21 tie today, allowing the Badgers to sneak into a share of their first big 10 football title in 40 years.

Brilliant Paul Giel led the Gophers as they came from behind three time to catch the Badgers for the final count midway in the last period.

The deadlock left Wisconsin tied with Purdue with 4-1-1 record in Big 10 play.

Big 10 athletic directors will vote over the weekend on the conference's Rose Bowl representative with the verdict to be announced Monday.

Giel, 185-pound junior halfback, made a sparkling bid for All-America recognition, passing for two of the Minnesota touchdowns and scoring the third himself as he handled virtually all of the running and passing in addition to directing the Gopher attack.

Sports Scraps

(By D. Kelly Scruton)

WE all had our picks on football — again I didn't do so pretty good—but mine on Kansas and Missouri was figured a little on the earlier games of the season although my heart was with Missouri. Others picked Kansas because they declared Missouri was just "no good" for which they are taking quite a beating over at various spots about town.

As an example there is Art Studebaker, a Kansas backer from way back and the staunchest supporter of the Jayhawks in Sedalia, who has been "pouring it on" the good old Missouri supporters. So enthused was Art over Kansas and the prospects of beating Missouri that he was almost in the mood to bet the family heirlooms that the Jayhawks would get Missouri trounced.

However some "takers" made some friendly wagers, just enough that if they won they could get dividends through the "rib" route. It was a hard afternoon, listening to the game, but when the Missourians returned from seeing the game Art didn't have time to disappear from the Elks Club and he was "trapped". Art proved a pretty good sport and "took it" but it was a bitter pill.

WALKING back to get a hot dog and a drink, I ran into Dick Sklar, o former Kansas football player. We discussed one of the plays regarding the "popular" vote of the stands rendered by the officials and he explained it thoroughly.

But it was noted, Dick wasn't too much interested in the game at that point—Missouri was ahead of Kansas.

NEEDLING aside—The two teams played a great game Saturday. In fact there wasn't a dull moment during the game other than "time outs". Every play provided excitement, every player was playing a great game—for some their last in college, some will be named All-Americans, others All-Conference and so on.

In this old country boy's book six Missouri players deserve thorough consideration for all-conference honors, and four from Kansas should make all Big Seven and one All-American on the basis of the way they played Saturday.

For the Tigers—Bill Rowecamp, a two-way performer; Jim Hook, the shifty left-half workhorse; Ed Merrifield, the fine safety-man; Bob Schoonmaker, a tackling demon; Terry Roberts. An outstanding linebacker; and Sedalia's own defensive tackle Charles Phillips all rate near the top of the list.

On the Jayhawk side I recommend Gil Reich, Bob Hantla, Bob Brandenberry and Galen Fiss to those picking all-conference teams and pick offensive tackle Oliver Spencer as the best blocking lineman I've seen all year. If Spencer doesn't make All-American it's just because the Big Seven doesn't receive enough publicity.

In closing I want to make it clear that I know all the above players can't make all-conference, but they certainly should at least receive some mention.

It's too bad Charley Hoag was hurt so early; he may be the best of the lot.

Sacred Heart Cracks Records To Cop 3rd Place At Warsaw

Records fell like raindrops Saturday night as the Sacred Heart Gremlins thoroughly trounced Preston, 74-49, for the third place trophy in the Warsaw Invitational Tournament.

First of all, little Jim Fall pumped in 37 points to crack the individual scoring mark; secondly, the Gremlins' 74 total was a team high; and thirdly, the red and white's average of 61 points a game is an unofficial mark.

Needless to say, Fall hit from all angles to spark the local club to the rout. After the first quarter, in which Sacred Heart led 15-12, the outcome was never in doubt. The locals led 34-20 at the half.

The Gremlins next play St. Mary's of Independence Monday night.

Oliver Waisner scored only six points for Stover all Friday night, but he made two with the chips down to end Sacred Heart's hopes of winning the Warsaw Invitational Tournament. Waisner's big pair, which came from the free-throw line with less than two minutes left, gave the Bulldogs a hard-earned 47-45 win and a shot at the tourney title.

Sacred Heart, off to its usual slow start, worked like a pack of demons during the first three quarters to finally knot the count at 34-all going into the final period.

At the four-minutes-left mark the Gremlins trailed by three. Then Jim Fall and Pat Ryan went to work to gain a one-point lead. Just before the two-minute warning Waisner tied the score at 45-each to set the stage for his heroic wind-up.

Roger Heimsoth led the winning squad with 21 points. Lefty Jim Fall carried the Gremlin load with 16, followed by Bob Bennett with ten.

The Gremlins, incidently, lost Bennett's services early in the third quarter, and to say they missed the services of the 6-foot-6¼ center on rebounds is an understatement.

Sacred Heart's girls also lost out in the volleyball tournament tournament. They were soundly defeated by Houstonia, 27-5. Norfleet led Houstonia with five points, while Cappy Bopp, Dorothy Pfieffer and Joan Sedlak each scored two for Sacred Heart.

Bogart and Sweet Springs in the boys division and Bunceton and Pilot Grove in the girls section shot their ways into the finals of the Nelson Invitational Tournament Friday night.

Only Bunceton had an easy time as they defeated the highly-regarded Blackburn girls by a score of 55-31. Betty Doty led the winner with 25 points, while Jessie Russell, one of the tourney's stars, set the pace for Blackburn with 14.

In the other girls game, Pilot Grove with its trio of scoring aces (Selback, Mallotte and Anderson) scoring all the points, edged Nelson 52-50, despite a brilliant 33-point splurge by Dorothy Verts of the host team.

Bob Krause stole the show as Sweet Springs stopped Malta Bend, 48-43, to earn one of the boys finals spots. The victors ace pumped in 23 counters to pace a squad that led all the way. Bodeker was high for Malta Bend with 15.

The second boys berth was earned by Bogart, which used Dysart's 19 tallies as a boost to a 4-44 win over Santa Fe. The victors led all the way but were hanging on for dear life when the final whistle blew. Santa Fe, which was behind six points at the half, narrowly missed throwing the game into overtime with a spirited closing rally.

Saturday's schedule was as follows:

Stark Paces Syracuse

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 —(AP)—Quarterback Pat Stark pitched four touchdown passes for bowl-hungry Syracuse today in a 26-13 victory over Fordham that kept alive their hopes of an Orange or Gator Bowl bid.

Tulsa Rallies Late To Shade Arkansas In 44-34 Contest

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 22 (AP) — Howard (The Wonder) Waugh, a battering fullback, place-kicker and Tom Miner, powered Tulsa's bowl-eager Hurricane to a 44-34 triumph over a surprising Arkansas team that went all out today in an effort to give resigned Coach Otis Douglas a parting win.

It was Waugh's 37-yard touchdown gallop in the fourth quarter that broke a 34-34 tie. Miner's subsequent conversion and 23-yard field goal shortly after that completed the Hurricane's margin of victory.

The spectacular scoring battle, touched off by a Tulsa tally only eight plays after the initial kick-off, saw the Hurricane roll up 490 yards to Arkansas' 445.

Waugh, who tops all rushers in the country, pounded out long gains for a total of 250 yards, a single game record for a Tulsa player.

Ronnie Morris, Tulsa's passing quarterback, completed six of 12 aerials for 93 yards and two touchdowns, his 17th and 18th scoring tosses of the season.

For Arkansas it was Capt. Buddy Sutton and Larry Hogue, the former carrying 21 times for 164 yards and the latter 18 for 96.

Lamar McHan, who threw 19 of the Razorbacks' passes, completed six for 81 yards but had three intercepted.

Baylor-SMU Scrap Ends In 7-7 Tie in the Mud

DALLAS, Nov. 22 (AP)—Baylor and Southern Methodist exchanged kickoff touchdown drives in the third period today to fight to a bitter 7-7 rain-sodden tie and hand the Southwest Conference football championship to Texas without further ado.

Windsor Upends Tigers

Visitors Uncork 4th Period Rally To Triumph, 45-36

Windsor's Greyhounds wrote a sour first chapter in Smith-Cotton's 1952-53 basketball record-book Friday night by uncorking a strong closing rally to stomp the local five by a 45-36 margin in a game played here.

Particular thorns in the Tigers' sides were Bowers, who scored 12 points, and Hunt, who hit for 11. This stubborn pair repeatedly counted buckets in the clutch to make the difference.

The contest started out in a listless fashion, but one that was all Sedalia—by an 8-3 margin at the end of the first quarter.

At that point the true trend began to take hold. During the second period the visitors chalked-up 14 points and led at half-time by 17-14.

Sedalia held together in the third quarter to cut the lead to 28-27, but fell into the fouling habit late in the fourth quarter to lose the contest. The final collapse came with only four minutes left—from then on it was all Windsor.

Sedalia's cause was weakened during the final minute of the third quarter when Jim Bob Shepherd received a badly gashed left knee when he crashed into a door diving after a loose ball. The cut, which required three stiches, will keep Shepherd out of the Tiger lineup for two weeks.

And Sedalia's chances went completely out the window at the outset of the final quarter when starter Jim Schneck, who was second in Tiger scoring with eight points, left the contest on fouls. Bob Hieronymus was the leading S-C point-maker with ten.

Members of the Smith-Cotton B-team kept the evening from being a total loss with a 33-29 victory over the young Greyhounds. Merlin McGowen and Walt Kennon paced the home squad with nine points each.

Sedalia will have another crack at Windsor Feb. 20, the final game on the local team's schedule.

MS Continues March Toward National Title. Dumps Marquette 52-13

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 22 (AP)—Michigan State, hungry for the mythical national championship, shattered the Marquette defense and went on a touchdown spree that added up to a 52-13 triumph here today.

The score represented the worst beating Michigan State had handed any team during the 2½ years it took to notch 24 straight wins, the best big school record in the country.

Because a morning downpour left the field a quagmire, Michigan State relied mostly on sheer, brutal power to make its nine touchdowns.

Sewanee Tigers Take Washington U. 22-12

SEWANEE, Tenn., Nov. 22 (AP)—With Coach Bill White missing from the bench for the first time in his 30-year coaching career, his Sewanee Tigers defeated Washington University of St. Louis today, 22-12. White is ill.

The victory gave Sewanee a 7-2 record for the season.

A field goal by Bill Porter from the 28-yard line opened the scoring for Sewanee in the first period, but in the second Ted Dunn, Washington fullback, scored on a short plunge after he had set the stage with a 30-yard run.

Touchdowns by Porter and Parkes in the second and third put Sewanee ahead for good.

Lingle, Nold Win Berths On CMC Stars

Four members of the Smith-Cotton football team won places on the Central Missouri Conference honor roll selected Saturday by the loop's coaches at the annual meeting held in Columbia. Two, halfback David Lingle and center Earl Nold, were placed on the mythical first team.

Other honorees are guard Ernest Duell, who took a second-team berth, and halfback Bobby Case, who won honorable mention.

Nold and Lingle, the Tigers' senior co-captains, were the shining lights in an otherwise dull season for Coach Ralph Dow's charges.

Lingle, a 5-foot-8, 150-pound scatback, led the locals in scoring with 42 points, while Nold, who stands the same height and weighs five pounds less, is credited with making the majority of tackles for Smith-Cotton from his line-backer spot.

Duell, a 5-foot-11, 175-pound junior, was the bulwark of the Tiger line which was amazingly strong in the center. Case, a sophomore, stands 5-feet-6 and weighs only 120 pounds. He turned in a brilliant performance against MMA.

Other members of the first CMC team were—ends, Bill Young of Columbia and Daryl Pinch of MMA; tackles, Jim Kesterson of Jefferson City and Bob Lee of Columbia; guards, Bill Starnes of Columbia and Herb Schriefer of Jefferson City; backs (five were chosen in all) Pete Walz of Jefferson City, Kenneth Roberts of Columbia, Don O'Neal of MMA and Bud Moses of Kemper.

Huskers Play Without Reynolds

Oklahoma Baffles Nebraska To Take Big Seven Crown

NORMAN, Okla., Nov. 22—(AP)—A mixture of superb passing and running under the generalship of quarterback Eddie Crowder gave Oklahoma a three-touchdown lead in the first quarter and the Sooners rolled on to blast Nebraska, 34-13, today for their fifth straight Big Seven Conference football crown.

Halfback Billy Vessels, one of 17 Sooners playing their last home game, scored three of the Oklahoma touchdowns before a homecoming crowd of 41,000 sitting in a drizzling rain.

Merrill Green and Buck McPhail added Oklahoma's two other touchdowns to give the nation's No. 5 team a record of five victories and one tie, to Colorado, in the conference race.

The victory ends Oklahoma's sixth Big Seven season under Coach Bud Wilkinson. The Sooners have played 35 loop games without a defeat in that regime.

Nebraska, obviously missing its star halfback Bobby Reynolds who pulled a leg muscle in a signal drill yesterday, tried a variety of defenses against the hard charging Sooners, sometimes with success, as Oklahoma was blanked in the second and third quarters.

The Cornhuskers, with a chance to tie Oklahoma for the loop flag if they won, twice were able to score at the end of 70-yard drives in the second and final quarters.

Smith Scores For Huskers

Nebraska's halfback Bob Smith tallied his team's first touchdown with 2½ minutes left in the second quarter, cutting around left end. That made the score 20-6. With two minutes gone in the last period, Nebraska repeated to end the scoring.

Dick Rolston picked up a fumble and scrambled 14 yards to the goal after teammate George Cifra had run eight yards but was jarred loose from the ball, Dennis Korinek converted.

Crowder carried eight times for 67 yards, an average of 8.3 yards a carry, and clocked on five of 11 passes for 128 yards as he sparked the Sooners.

McPhail, rushed 136 yards in 22 carries, and Vessels, making 96 in 20 tries, both broke Oklahoma's modern seasonal rushing records of 902 yards set in 1946 by Joe Golding. Vessels ran his total to 960, McPhail to 922 and the Sooners still have one game left—meeting the Oklahoma Aggies next Saturday.

Vessels Scores Early

Vessels made two touchdowns in the first period, opening the contest's scoring with a five-yard slash to climax a 58-yard drive. His second came at the end of the period on a one-yard buck as the Sooners rolled 81 yards. Sandwiched in between was a 42-yard drive culminated with Green's five yard swing around left end to the goal.

Halfway through the third period, McPhail crossed the double-stripe from eight yards out after taking a lateral from Billy Vessels, who was trapped. Vessels made the game's longest touchdown run, 26 yards, as he evaded the Nebraska secondary after being momentarily stopped.

This closed out a 71-yard Sooner march. McPhail made four conversions.

Cyclones Run Kansas State Into Cellar

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 22—(AP)—Kansas State found itself in possession of the Big Seven Conference cellar for the 10th straight season here today as Iowa State handed it a 27 to 0.

The visiting Iowans paraded devastating wide end sweeps and punishing thrusts up the middle to keep the unfortunate Wildcats off balance all afternoon. Nor could the inconsistent K-State offense give a shivering crowd of 10,000 more than momentary opportunities to cheer.

K-State moved deep into Cyclone territory only once when tackle Ron Clair smothered Lee Spence's fumble on the Iowa State eleven. But the key had been thrown away on the touchdown gate as the delaying penalty sent Coach Bill Meek's club back to the 16, and four plays only could gain five yards.

A narrow six-point favorite at kick-off time, Coach Abe Stuber's charges showed their superiority early as they pounded to a touchdown the first time they gained the ball.

Halfback Emory Eichorn and quarterback Dick Planton sparked the initial drive which covered 43 yards in 11 plays, with Wichorn cracking over center from the one with seven minutes left in the quarter. Plantan passed to Alleman for the extra point.

Iowa State got its second counter with only 29 seconds left in the first quarter when Plantan passed to Alleman for the extra point.

Iowa State got its second counter with only 29 seconds left in the first quarter when Plantan sneaked across from the one. Short punches up the middle by fullback Max Burkett, halfback Dick Cherpinsky, and Eichorn accounted for 27 vital yards in nine plays. Bob Clendening's conversion try was wide.

Spence sparked the Cyclones' only second quarter scoring sortie as he accounted for 29 of Iowa State's 50-yard scoring drive late in the period. The Cherokee, Ia., halfback counted the touchdown as he went wide to the right, fumbled and then recovered the leather in the end zone with only 56 seconds left in the half.

The only second half touchdown came with lightning like suddenness when senior Cyclone halfback Frank Congiardo went around left end, hurled three K-State tacklers and went 49 yards to score standing up with 45 seconds left in the third frame.

Musial Runs Second

Roberts Heads Major League All-Star Team

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—Robin Roberts, a 28-game winner for the Philadelphia Phillies last season, and Stan Musial, who holds a one-man monopoly on the batting title for the St. Louis Cardinals, head the 1952 major league All-Star team announced today by the Sporting News.

Roberts nudged Musial, six-time batting king who won his third straight title in 1952, by one vote as the most preferred choice among 191 members of the Baseball Writers' Association polled by baseball's self-credited bible for its 28th annual selection. The Phils' ace was named on 184 ballots.

The only close player race was at third base where George Kell of Boston's Red Sox edged Cleveland's Al Rosen. Elsewhere in the infield the writers picked Ferris Fain of the Philadelphia Athletics at first base; Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson at second and Phil Rizuto of the New York Yankees at short.

Hank Sauer, the Chicago Cubs' slugger and the National League's most valuable, and young Mickey Mantle of the Yanks join Musial in the outfield. Yogi Berra of the Yanks was the catching choice.

Bobby Shantz, the A's American League MVP, and Yankee Allie Reynolds paired with Roberts on the mound staff.

Ohio State Ends Michigan Dream Of Rose Bowl

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22 (AP)—Ohio State's up-and-down Bucks, headed nowhere in particular themselves, bounced Michigan's Wolverines off the Rose Bowl and Big Ten championship road today with a resounding 27-7 upset before 81,541 fans.

Quarterback Johnny Borton was the big gun as the underdog Bucks ended a seven-year drought against Michigan. The big sophomore threw three touchdown passes and scored the other himself.

Two Ohio ends from Middletown, O., were the pass catchers—junior Bob Joslin catching two, and Bob Grimes the other. The Wolverines, who had held Ohio to two touchdowns in the last seven years, and who entered the fray tied for the Western conference with Wisconsin, saw their title and Rose Bowl hopes fade as they fumbled away a host of scoring opportunities and saw others vanish on five pass interceptions.

Cougars Shade Sooner Aggies By Two Points

(AP)—The Washington State Cougars made their first visit to Lewis Field a fruitful endeavor today by shading the luckless Oklahoma Aggies 9-7 in a stoutly played intersectional football battle.

A Mom and Dads Day crowd of only 10,000 was rewarded with a bristling brand of play although the score failed to indicate such action.

The visiting Cougars displayed a varied attack which netted a second period touchdown and a 6-0 lead on an 84-yard drive which saw quarterback Terry Campbell hit five passes—one for 25 yards and another for 14. Halfback Mert Purnell plunged over from the four but end Ed Barker missed the kick.

They shot ahead late in the third quarter on a field goal by Barker and protected the slim two-point margin with comparative ease.

Although the Aggies went down to their sixth defeat of the season, it was their spectacular play in the final second of the first half which added brilliance to a dull overcast afternoon.

With the ball on their own 23, the Aggies took a final parting shot relaying on a screen pass by quarterback Don Babers. He made good on his end of the bargain hitting halfback Bobbie Green on the 35.

Green then brought the slim crowd to its feet with a sparkling demonstration of broken field running, traveling 65 yards to tie the score. He cut sharply to his left, headed for the far sideline and with two key blocks by center Jim Lutes and halfback Duane Reed went the rest of the way on his own. Bennie Davis kicked the point to send the Aggies out in front 7-6.

Kentucky Ties Muddy Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22—(AP)—A furious pack of Kentucky Wildcats staged a sensational fourth quarter rally today to score two touchdowns and battle favored Tennessee to a 14-14 tie.

A topcoated crowd of 30,000 braved freezing weather to see the aroused Kentucky team scrap back from a halftime 14-point deficit to knot the count.

The savage battle was fought on a gridiron turned into a sloppy mess by a record 22-inch snow which struck Knoxville yesterday.

The jubilant Wildcats, who have never beaten a Tennessee team coached by Gen. Bob Neyland, hoisted their entire coaching staff to their shoulders after the game and carried them to the dressing room.

A Democrat class ad will do it. Phone 1000.

Tigers Find Win Tough To Believe

COLUMBIA, Nov. 22 (AP)—The ear-splitting racket in the Missouri Tigers' dressing room was laced with a bit of stunned disbelief.

Some of the gridmen still were finding it hard to believe that they really had held their slender one-point margin over Kansas through the hectic last minute of the game today.

And now they were in second place in the Big Seven, a spot they didn't dream about three months ago.

Coach Don Faurot managed to gasp, "Gosh, but I'm happy."

He had just climbed on a table to shout an announcement that the squad would get a steak dinner Tuesday night. The dinner had been promised by Leon Foutz of Kansas City, father of a freshman Tiger player, Dick Foutz.

"We were lucky," Faurot added, "but we're happy to win just the same. Kansas played a hard and clean game every step of the way. We were lucky to be able to hang on through those last seconds."

Over in the Kansas dressing room the dull silence was cut by the clear voice of Coach Jules Sikes, who told his squad:

"I'm proud of you boys. You really fought."

The Jayhawkers were remembering those last seconds when their potential touchdown pass was knocked down, and a field goal try failed. Either would have meant victory.

Old grads and fathers swarmed in to offer quiet reassurance that, "You boys played a good game." There was a low-voiced reply from one player:

"It just wasn't good enough."

Alabama Checks Maryland's Ace To Win. 27-7

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 22 (AP)—A fired-up Alabama football team handed mighty Maryland its second upset in a row today with a furious ground attack that overwhelmed the Terps, 27 to 7.

The victory, eighth of the year for the Crimson Tide against only two defeats, gave Alabama a big push toward an expected Orange Bowl bid.

Maryland, favored to win by a touchdown despite its loss to Mississippi last week, couldn't get its offense going in the face of the terrific line play by the 'Bama forward wall.

The Terrapins' All-America quarterback candidate, Jack Scarbath, had only occasional success with his tosses. Maryland's only score came on a 25-yard pass from Scarbath to Lew Weidensaul.

Hubbard High Plays SAFB Monday Night

The Hubbard Tigers will get their first taste of basketball competition, Monday night, when they play the Sedalia Air Base team in a practice session. The regular basketball schedule of the Hubbard High School will not get underway until Wednesday, Dec. 5 when they meet R. T. Coles of Kansas City, Kan.

The Tigers have a schedule of 19 games, 12 of which are to be played on the Sedalia court at Hubbard High School.

Coles, long time rivals of the Hubbard teams, has a well-trained varsity cage team and the Sedalians are expecting plenty of trouble in their first round of basketball this year.

However, the past week the Tigers have been going through some hard daily workouts under the tutorship of Coach Tipton.

First string starters are Jack Piper, Bobby Thomas, and Alvin Jones Jr., returning from the varsity of last season. A number of other boys who played with Hubbard last season also have returned.

The season schedule:

Bees In The Bedroom

DUBLIN (AP)—Henry Lawrence of Ballymena, Ireland, has a beehive in his bedroom.

He installed the hive two years ago and now has a colony of 25,000 bees in winter and upwards of 70,000 in the summer. This year he collected 35 pounds of honey.

Said Lawrence: "Most people associate bee-keeping with gardening, but I have proved that they can be kept successfully in the heart of town."

Czech Asks To Be Hanged At Red Trial

VIENNA, Austria, Nov. 22 (AP)—Three Jewish Czechoslovak Communists abjectly confessed to "zionism" at the Prague purge trial today and one asked to be hanged.

They are among 14 purged Czech reds being tried on charges of treason and a series of other alleged offensives growing out of a shakeup of the Czech Communist party.

Two of the Jews are former deputy foreign ministers; the third is a former Red newspaper editor.

The obvious anti-Semitic overtones of the trial may be aimed at winning the Arab countries to Communism through their enmity of Israel.

The Jewish Telegraph Agency reported in a dispatch from Tel Aviv that the trial, with its anti-Jewish and anti-Israel tone, was the chief topic of conversation throughout Israel.

Variety To Celebrate Its 25th Anniversary

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 22 (AP)—Variety, a social club of the entertainment world which has attracted wide attention for its interest in the care of abandoned children, will celebrate its silver anniversary tomorrow.

The organization, founded in Pittsburgh in 1927 by 11 showmen, "adopted" its first child — an abandoned month - old girl — in 1928. Variety turned her over to the Roselia Foundling Home and contributed funds for her care.

Variety grew until today it boasts 40 units — known as tents — in all parts of the world with a total membership of about 10,000. Each tent is required to have a charity program, primarily for children's care. More than 26 million dollars has been raised to date.

This year, Tent No. 1 in Pittsburgh has set a goal of $400,000 for construction of a new wing at the Roselia home.

Attorney Seeks To Extend Life Of Grand Jury

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 22—(AP)—The Missouri Attorney General was asked today whether the life of a grand jury investigating reported connections between hoodlums and members of the St. Louis Police Department could be extended.

First assistant circuit attorney John J. Kelly said the grand jury's term expires next Friday.

The circuit court grand jury was called to probe the beating here Nov. 12 of John Randazzo 39-year-old truck firm operator, but several other facets of the inquiry have appeared since then.

Kelly said on the basis of a preliminary check of the law he does not believe the jury's tenure can be extended to continue the investigation.

However, Circuit Judge Robert K. Kirkwood has given assurances that the December jury would be instructed to continue the probe, the Globe-Democrat reported.

Earlier Mayor Joseph M. Darst had wired Gov. Forrest Smith seeking assistance from the attorney general in the investigation. No decision will come from the governor before Monday.

Donna Marie Smith Presented In Recital

Red Cross Notes---

LaMonte School First to Report Junior Red Cross Membership

Of all the Pettis County schools, the La Monte school is the first to have turned in the Junior Red Cross enrollment report, and also the requisite number of filled gift boxes. The boys and girls who made this record possible have every right to be proud of it.

The local Red Cross chapter urges all the rest of the schools turn in their reports as soon as possible, and also complete the filling of these gift boxes, as they are to be shipped the middle of December.

As part of the fall and winter safety program, a film, produced by the American National Red Cross depicting the various Red Cross services, especially first aid and water safety, was shown to Centerview School last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Victor McFadden, first aid instructor, gave a demonstration on the subject in conjunction with the movie. Mrs. Elizabeth Bond is the instructor at Centerview.

The bloodmobile will be back in Sedalia at Santa Claus time, just at the right moment to make it possible for Sedalia and Pettis County blood doners to give a very special Christmas present — a pint of blood for a man in Korea. The Blood Bank will be set up at the Armory Dec. 5 and 6. Prospective donors may call 618 now and register.

Michael Wolfel, chairman of safety services, has scheduled a meeting of all first aid instructors for Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Red Cross office.

Social Calendar

TUESDAY

Ernest Endeavor Sunday school class of Epworth Methodist Church will meet at 6 p.m. for a Thanksgiving supper. The business meeting will follow the supper. Members are to bring a covered dish.

WEDNESDAY

Quisenberry Home Economics Club will meet at the L. H. Haggard home instead at the Chappell home as previously announced. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p. m. Members are to bring canned fruit and vegetables for the Thanksgiving offering.

Mary Mayer conducted a quiz on a pamphlet called "Do You Realize?"

A dessert luncheon was served and game prizes went to Mrs. Maud Karrigan, Mrs. Florence Cerny and Mrs. J. P. Bernard.

Mrs. Clara Koerper, 310 West Third, will be hostess at the next meeting.

Club Plans Supper For New Families

Women of the Dresden Extension Club met Nov. 18 and made plans for a pot luck supper for their families and new families in the community. The supper will be Dec. 12 at the club house.

Plans were also made for the annual Christmas party to be Dec. 16. Mrs. A. B. Cook, Mrs. C. M. Ferguson and Mrs. I. C. Evans will be hostesses.

Mrs. Charles Romig gave a book review and Mrs. George Farris read a poem "Jack Frost" written by Miss Hazel Lang.

Seventeen members and three guests were present. Mrs. George Fichter and Mrs. Ivan Smith were hostesses for the day.

The Democrats replied that such replacement already was going on as fast as South Koreans could be adequately trained and equipped.

In his magazine article, Van Fleet writes that already 60 per cent of the 155-mile battlefront is being manned by ROK (Republic of Korea) troops, another 15 per cent by other United Nations troops leaving Americans responsible for only 25 per cent of the line.

Furthermore, he says, there are —(Korean Augmentation to the U. S. Army)—in each U. S. division, thus reducing still more the share of fighting now borne by Americans.

"The next time you read that an American outfit has smashed a Red attack," he writes, "just remember that three or four out of every 21 'Americans' were South Koreans."

V. A. Offering To Sell Its GI Home Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The veterans Administration is offering more than 23,000 of its guaranteed home loans, totaling more than 150 million dollars in principal, for sale to private lending institutions showing ability to service them.

The proceeds go back into a VA revolving fund for use in making direct home loans to veterans in areas where the agency finds private capital is not available for GI 4 per cent loans guaranteed by the VA.

Congress has authorized use by June 30, 1953, of up to 275 million dollars for such direct loans, including 175 million dollars made available in prior years.

T. B. King, director of VA's Loan Guaranty Service, described the loans being offered for sale as "a practically riskless asset for the lender."

When the VA sells such loans, it guarantees them up to 60 per cent in the same manner that it stands behind a GI loan made by a private lender. Sales are handled by VA regional offices.

The average loan now available for sale is about $6,600 in initial principal amount with a typical maturity of 20 years and a cash down payment of 5 to 10 per cent, VA said.

"VA's repayment experience to date has been excellent," King said. "Of the 23,775 loans closed through Sept. 30, only 16, or about 1-15th of one per cent of the total number of loans closed have resulted in foreclosure or voluntary conveyance of the property to VA in lieu of foreclosure."

VanFleet Says More So. Korean Divisions Coming

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet says "we can produce many more" fighting South Korean divisions in addition to the 10 divisions which already are manning the bulk of the Korean front.

Declaring that he favors "increased use of native troops to defend their own lands and to replace the American soldier wherever possible," the Eighth Army commander in Korea writes in the Nov. 23 issues of "This Week" magazine:

"For the type of defensive warfare in which we are engaged—static positions with little movement in mountanious terrain—the ROK's are as good, man for man as U. S. troops.

"And you can train, feed and pay 16 ROK's for the price of one American."

The subject became an issue in the presidential campaign when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower urged replacement of more American troops with South Koreans and later made public a letter from an

First Thanksgiving 331 Years Ago, But U. S. Did Not Begin Regular Observance Until 1863

The fall crop of corn was good and the small band of people that made up the Plymouth Colony was grateful that they had successfully crossed the rough waters of the ocean to a new land of freedom.

In the group were men of great strength because only such men crossed oceans in those days with fearless women who dared to face the unknown, women with faith enough to believe that they could take their children to the wilderness of a new land and make for them the kind of a mobe they had prayed for — a home of love and faith in a land where they might worship as they pleased.

The way had been bitter, there were heartaches, many of them, for scarcely more than half had survived the hardships, but they had made friends with the Indians, learned from them, and now thier first harvest was fulfilled.

So, deep in their hearts was the thanks for the crude homes they had built, the crops they had grown, the blessings that had been theirs — they wanted to have a big feast to which they would invite friendly Indians and they would all give thanks.

There were days of preparation for the feast — the men brought in wild turkeys and other meat and the women spent the time busily boiling, baking and roasting.

The stir of activity was even taken up by the children, who like the children of today, wanted to help. They turned the roasts on spits before the open fire and did many little things to help make ready for the great feast.

The Indians came and brought their share of wild turkey and other meat and the feast was spread on long tables in the open. It was a big family dinner, this first Thanksgiving in 1621, but it was not merely a feast, it was a time of prayer, sermons and songs of praise.

This first Thanksgiving Day had been decreed by Governor Bradford and it was three days before the Indians returned to the forest and the colonists to their tasks.

The custom spread to other colonies and there were other days set aside by other later groups. There were eight Thanksgiving Days observed after signals of victories or wonderful deliverance during the Revolutionary War.

The custom grew but there was no uniformity in the Thanksgivings — some states had annual Thanksgiving Days, others did not. It was a woman who felt there should be such a day — she was Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of Godey's Lady Book. Mrs. Hale took a deep interest in getting a national Thanksgiving Day and for 20 years she tried through the columns of her journal and each year she wrote a letter to the president then in office. But it was not until 1863 that she was rewarded. The president was Abraham Lincoln who appointed the last Thursday of November as Thanksgiving Day, and Mrs. Hale became known as the "Mother of Thanksgiving."

Each year the president makes an announcement calling the people to give thanks and this observance has become customary in the United States.

The time Lincoln announced the date of the first national Thanksgiving Day the feasts were still of wild turkeys and wild game that men often shot from the back doors of their homes. Families gathered in the spacious homes following church services and tables were piled high with all kinds of food, much of which, like the feast of the Plymouth Colony, was prepared in advance.

The Thanksgiving Days have gone from the days of blue willow dishes back to the blue willow dishes and the Thanksgiving custom still remains one of family gatherings with those dishes piled high with food. Today the distances between the families are less because transportation is faster, heads still are bowed in prayer at the Thanksgiving table, but it would be well to go back to the Plymouth Colony to feel the real warmth of the prayers. To look about at the vast country that began with brave people who dared to cross an ocean to settle it — to be thankful for all its wealth, its beauty, its freedom — to forget for at least one day the things we grumble about and remember the things that we have to be thankful for — to offer prayers of Thanksgiving and praise in song as did the people of the Plymouth Colony.

It would be well for not only families, but neighbors to gather for feast and prayers of Thanks— and do such things still exist—? Indeed they do Such a feast is given each year in rural community in Pettis County close to Sedalia.

For several years they have gone together on Thanksgiving Day and spread their tables in their community house in much the same manner that the people of the Plymouth Colony did. These people of several farms of Pettis County that form a little community of their own join together in feast in Thanksgiving for the harvests of the waning year.

Yes, on this one great day, which is set aside for Thanksgiving, is a time for sharing and caring and a day for giving Thanks.

Thanksgiving

Lord, I am thankful for so many things,
The voice of some young girl as she sings,
The laughter of the children at their play,
The smiles of those I meet along the way;
The gladness in my heart when e'er I give,
The freedom of this land in which I live,
The good I find in people branded bad,
The kindness to those whose hearts are sad;
I'm grateful for my home and love that's there,
And for the many friendships that I share,
I'm glad that I'm not wealthy—I'm not great,
I'm glad there is nobody whom I hate,
The things I have are simple as can be,
And yet, they mean so very much to me,
The dreams of youth—the aged's memories,
For this is life and I love all of these,
The gleam of pride of those who know success,
The hope and faith of those with so much less,
The sunsets, harvest moons, the flowers, the birds,
The eyes that shine from only kindly words,
These are the blessings, God, that you have sent,
I'm thankful that such things make me content,
I'm thankful for each blessing that is mine
For all the time I feel your touch divine,
And always in my heart I try to say,
"Thank you, O Lord," as on Thanksgiving Day.

John J. Jones Retires After 33 Years As MoPac Baggageman

For many years John J. Jones, 400 North Ohio, was a familiar figure around the Missouri Pacific depot. He could be seen as train time neared, pulling the large carts out on the track at just the place he knew the baggage car would be when the swiftly moving passenger train slowed and then stopped at the station. Then he would help load the baggage on the cart and when it was filled up high he would start pulling it, or sometimes pushing it, toward the baggage room. It wasn't easy—those loaded carts were heavy and it took a lot of strength to pull and push them.

And the things that were loaded on them—sometimes there were two or three carts, with everything imaginable being thrown on—sometimes something would slip off and Jones would get down to get it.

This time of year the packages increased, things coming in for the Christmas rush — then Christmas boxes that made you wonder if there was anything there that might be going to your own door, and John was always there pushing and pulling in all kinds of weather.

But this year as the packages of the Christmas season grow bigger and bigger John won't be there—he will be sitting in an easy chair at home. He retired on Nov. 1, after 33 years.

John was born on the old D. H. Smith farm, which was then the Woolridge farm, and his family goes back to slavery in Pettis County. It was at the time that salvery ended that his grandmother, Helen Jones, then a young girl, found herself free and was told to get out. And so from the only home she had known in Beaman she tried to make her way to Otterville. Three times she started and got lost—she didn't know how to get there—and finally she ended up in Sedalia. In Sedalia she ran into Major Gentry, who gave her a job and for whom she worked the remainder of her working days. She later married a man named Phillips and Betty, her daughter, was John's mother. When John was nine years old his mother died and was buried on the Gentry farm. The father of the boy, Joseph Jones, had a spring wagon and was ready to take the boy home with him, but Johnny didn't want to go. He looked back at the woman who had reared his mother, who reared the Woolridge children, the Thompson children and the Bouldin family. They all called her "Black Mammy," but Johnny didn't—he called her "Mammy." He got out of the wagon and went to her: "I don't want to go with daddy," he said, "I want to live with you." And so he did. She brought him to school in Sedalia. It was 40 years before he ever went back to the house where his mother died.

When he was 11 years old John went to Kansas with his father. When he was 19 he came back to Sedalia on a visit and got a job at the Sischer Hotel. He later worked at the Boutell-Graham saloon until it closed and then, on May 1, 1919, went to work for the railroad as baggage helper. He worked under Roy Kirchhofer, who was then baggage man.

He was married in Sedalia to Cora Bush who died Aug. 2, 1948. He has four daughters, all of them teachers. Two of them, Mrs. Hazel Lucus and Mrs. Jewell Corinne Jordan, are teaching in Cleveland, O. Mrs. Dorothy Lee and the unmarried daughter, Jeraldine Jones, both are home with their father and are teachers at Hubbard School.

When Johnny Jones came back to Sedalia there were two other fellows here by the same name and they were continually getting into trouble—it worried him to such a degree that he almost went back to Kansas—he thought people would think it was him. Then, in 1900 he joined the Masons and when the man put down his name he put it down J. J. Jones, so that was what it was after that.

Then when the second little girl was born and she was named Jewell Corinne, the Corinne for her mother, her daddy decided he would take the name of Jewell for that second initial "J" that the man had given him—so, he said laughingly, "I was named for my daughter."

Jones doesn't care about going back down to the depot now—he doesn't work there any more and he doesn't want to go down there. Only once has he been there since he left—that was to get his last check. "I have checked baggage for people all over the country, all kinds of people, rich and poor, but I have always got along with everybody," he said. Anyone who can get along with everybody dealing with the public for 33 years—as he has done—has some record. He deserves an easy chair in his own living room. There will be no more pulling of the baggage truck onto the track when the light turns red in the distance and there is a faint whistle that gets closer and closer. For John J. Jones there is only the green light — that he might go where and when he pleases through the years that lie ahead.

A woman who has a new car, a lovely shade of light green, is having a bit of trouble — she keeps forgetting she has a new car and when she is looking for her parked car she finds herself looking for a blue one — which is the color of her old one.

— H. L.

The comic book had pictures of chickens with hands at the ends of their wings and three year old Richard, who lives on a farm, figured there was something wrong somewhere. He couldn't seem to remember that their chickens had hands so he thought he had better go out and see. Out he went and looked the chickens over — first one and then another until he was convinced that none of them had hands. Then back in the house he went to his grandmother: "Grandmother" he said, "Our chickens no got hands." — H. L.

In an effort to be helpful a man thought he would get supper one evening and have things all ready by the time his wife got home. He looked in the refrigerator and saw some cold mashed potatoes so he got them out, warmed up some milk, put some butter with them and stirred them up good. They were rather queer looking potatoes, however, they didn't look just right, but he got the job done by the time his wife got home.

The wife looked at the potatoes on the table and asked what they were.

"Those mashed potatoes that were in the refrigerator," her husband told her.

"I didn't have any mashed potatoes in the refrigerator" said the wife and she looked a little closer. "That's mush and I was going to fry it." — H. L.

Rolla Rabourn, 1219 East Sixth, motorman on the East Thirteenth line of the City Light & Traction system, was robbed of his money changer and between $6 and $7 the night of Nov. 21 while he was changing a trolley of his street car. No effort was made to get any money he might have had in his pockets by the two men in the holdup.

Roses' Name Irk Reds

VIENNA, (AP) — Hungry's Communist regine doesn't like the names of certain roses—they smell too must of the West.

The official newspaper Szahad Nep criticized the names of roses in a public park—"Lord Rossmore, Lord Charlemont, The Duchess of Southland, Lady Ashton, Lady Forst, Golden Ophelia, Pope Pius XIII, Maria Theresia."

The newspaper suggested they be given more "glorious" names, lige "May 1, November 7, Red Star, Liberation"—all with Communistic significance.

Eisenhower Got Gloomy Picture of Korean War

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — General Eisenhower's recent conference with military chiefs at the Pentagon did not lead to much hope that he could end the Korean War on his forthcoming trip.

The picture given him on the whole was gloomy. In fact, considerably more casualties may be necessary before there can be any conclusion in Korea.

In general, the President-elect was told that the Communists had built up their strength to a peak of 1,200,000 men. They took advantage of the truce talks to put across this build-up, and it now develops that the Chinese were weak and crumbling when they asked for a truce — apparently for the purpose of stalling for time. From our point of view the truck talks were one of the crucial mistakes of the war.

Eisenhower was also given the rather ominous news that signs of a Communist offensive have been reported. The forward placement of enemy artillery along the Korean battle front looks like an approaching large - scale attack. Also there has been a build-up of light bombers just across the Yalu River, which is a bad sign. For light bombers are chiefly used for offense.

There was no indication that an offensive was being timed for Eisenhower's visit to Korea — though that could be the case.

The President-Elect was told that, if an offensive does come, U. N. troops were sufficient to hold the line, though the line might be dented in spots.

Eisenhower asked each member of the joint chiefs of staff the same question. Of Admiral Fechteler, chief of naval operations, he asked: What kind of shape is the Navy in in Korea? Fine shape, Fechteler replied.

Eisenhower got about the same answer from Gen. Joe Collins, Army Chief of Staff, and Gen. Nate Twining, vice-chief of staff for the Air Force.

He did not discuss his trip to Korea with the joint chiefs of staff, though he told Secretary of Defense Lovett that he would let him know about the trip in two or three days.

Fame Is Fleeting

General Eisenhower and Freeman Gosden, partner in the team of Amos and Andy, were playing golf the other day and discussing the question of fame.

General Eisenhower complained a bit that his new - found fame restricted his movements and his normal way of living. But Gosden assured him that fame is very fleeting.

Gosden went on to explain that for a good many years he was supposed to be one of the biggest figures in the entertainment world, but since Amos and Andy had gone on television, three Negro actors had been hired to play the parts — Tim Moore as Kingfish, Alvin Childress as Amos, and Spencer Williams as Andy.

"After the TV films are made," Gosden explained to Eisenhower, "They are taken to a theatre for a preview before a live audience, at which we dub in the audience applause and reaction.

"And after it's all over, the three actors who have only just taken over these TV parts nearly get mobbed, while Charlie Correll and I who have been playing them for years, get shoved aside."

Changing Washington

Leslie Biffle; astute secretary of the Senate. Biffle, famous for making Alben Barkley Vice President, for giving away canned tomato juice at Christmas, and for dressing up as a chicken salesman to take election - campaign soundings, will not become minority senate secretary when the Democrats lose control. He is tired of politics and will go into business.

Ambassador Felix Nieto Del Rio, popular Chilean Envoy to the U. S. A. He is packing his bags cause a general, Carlos Ibanez, won an election in his country. Alaska. Gruening has been Governor of Alaska — and a good one — for 13 years, longer than any other man in history. Probably he has been governor longer than most governors of states. His term expires in April at which time he will resign. He is not removable at the pleasure of the President.

Mike Straus, Commissioner of Reclamation. Straus, an old personal friend of Harold Ickes, is turning in his resignation to Eisenhower. But in the final Truman budget he is proposing a long list of dams and power projects which Republican senators in the West very much want, but which Eisenhower budget - pruners will probably cut.

Carlos Reyes — Press Secretary of the Chilean Embassy. He is moving out because he once refused to shake hands with the new Chilean ambassador to the U. S. A. Anibal Jara. Jara once edited a Chilean magazine in New York, looks like John L. Lewis, and wrote the Anti - American speeches of President Ibanez which helped him win the recent election.

Moving-in day is approaching for the following:

Col. Gordon Moore, brother-in-law of General Eisenhower. A retired Army officer, married to Mamie's younger sister, Colonel Moore is in the public-relations business. He will get some of the big accounts once given to Democrats.

Tom Stephens, probable new appointment secretary to Eisenhower. Former assistant to campaign manager Herbert Brownell during the Dewey try for the White House, Stephens has been with Ike most of the time since he arrived from Paris, is efficient, hard-working, good team-worker.

Sen. "Wild Bill" Langer of North Dakota. For years Langer has been something of a GOP stepchild. Republicans once tried to bar him from taking his Senate seat, since then he has voted frequently with the Democrats, especially on domestic issues. Now Langer moves into one of the most important spots in the entire Senate — Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. Republicans have been doing their best to persuade him to take another post, but their hands are tied. For all Langer has to do is vote with the Democrats and this one vote would permit the Democrats to organize the Senate.

Old Coins

Only 1 U. S. Coin Ever Recalled And Denometized

By Bill Hert

Thru the years, many stories are circulated from time to time that some one of our coins is being called in by the government. Usually the story is that the particular coin has an error in the design or that the metal content is in-correct. Actually, and a matter of record fact, only one coin ever struck by the Unted States has been demonetized or 'called in' and, therefore, is not redeemable by the Treasury Department. This coin is the U. S. Trade Dollar.

These dollars were issued from 1873 thru 1885 for circulation in the Orient to compete with the silver dollars of Mexico and Spain. When first coined they were legal tender in the United States to the extent of $5, but with the decline in price of silver bullion, Congress repealed the legal tender provision in 1876 and authorized the Treasury to limit coinage to export demand only. The silver content of these coins was greater than the regular U. S. dollar, 7¼ grains, and also of greater fineness.

In 1887 a law was passed authorizing the Treasury to redeem all Trade Dollars and, after that year, they were no longer a United States coin or obligation as legal tender. Even today, however, these collars are still circulating in the Orient.

Contrary to common belief, the general run of the trade dollars are not rare or scarce and can be obtained from collectors or coin dealers for a little over a dollar. From 1881 to 1885 these coins were only struck as proof coins, particularly for collectors, and as only small amounts were struck, these are scarce and rare. The 1884 and 1885 are the rarest, only five and ten coins of these dates were struck and would bring the owner well over a thousand dollars a coin.

Questions and Answers

Q. What is a proof coin?

A. Proof coins are made especially for collectors. However, anyone may obtain them. They are the ultimate in the manufacture of coins. They are struck at the Philadelphia mint and sold at a premium, in sets made up of our current coinage; half dollar, quarter, dime, nickel and cent. The metal blanks on which the coins are struck are first polished to a very high lustre. The die that strikes the coin is also polished before stamping each individual piece and the resulting coin has a beautiful mirror - like surface. The current set of proof coins may be obtained for $2.10, which includes postage and registration, by writing the Superintendent of the U. S. Mint, Philadelphia, Pa. A post office money order is the only type remittance accepted by the mint for these coins.

The World Today---

Ike Still Is Not Elected

by ARTHUR EDSON
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON (AP)—Elmer Davis, the radio commentator, wrote the New York Times the other day to say, with tongue in cheek, that it had erred when it put this headline on an editorial:

"We have a president-elect."

"We have nothing of the sort," Davis said. He's right, of course. Dwight D. Eisenhower hasn't received a single vote for the presidency, even though he is so near the White House he has named three men to be cabinet officers.

The electors, picked in the voting on Nov. 4, meet in their state capitals on Dec. 15 and vote for a president. Their decision becomes official when their votes are counted by Congress on Jan. 6. Not until then is Eisenhower legally the president-elect.

Probably no other part of our federal government has come in for more criticism than the electoral college.

Supreme Court Justice Jackson, with Justice Douglas agreeing, has said it is "mystifying and distorting." Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts has called it a "relic of the past." The words "antiquated" and "useless" have been hurled at it again and again.

Yet for 150 years it has successfully withstood all assaults.

Two years ago it looked as if it might topple. Lodge, a Republican, and Rep. Ed Gossett, a Texas Democrat, introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to change the system.

Under the proposed amendment, the use of electors would be done away with. And, instead of all the state's electoral votes going to the candidate who carries the state, the electoral vote would be split in the same proportion as the popular vote.

The amendment passed the Senate, 64 to 23 (it needed a two-thirds majority). But opposition developed in both parties and it came a cropper in the House, with 134 votes for and 210 against.

Even had the House supported it by a two-thirds majority, the proposal still would have had to be accepted by three-fourths of the states before it became a part of our Constitution.

The electoral college is a reminder that the founding fathers set up a representative form of government. We make our laws through our representatives and senators. And, originally, the voters picked the men who were to pick our presidents.

As the political parties grew, the electors became little more than rubber stamps.

Why hasn't the electoral college been abandoned in favor of a direct vote for the president?

The most obvious answer is that it requires a change in the Constitution, and this nation always has been slow to make changes there.

Average Citizen Ignores News of H-Bomb Explosion

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The explosion of an H-Bomb weapon in the Pacific may have startled the diplomatic world. The average American, however, took little more note of it than if, on a summer night, he had glanced up and seen a star fall.

Previous tidings of other new and marvelous ways in which the human race could destroy itself have exhausted his capacity for terror and dismay.

The ordinary mortal today is tired of being frightened by graphic previews of what may befall. He has eaten the bread of crisis so long it has come to have a stale taste.

People were so upset over the atom bomb that the wider threat of the H-Bomb can hardly appall them. You have to rest from fear sometime, and the average man feels like taking a seventh - inning stretch right now.

"So maybe I'll get conked sometime by an h - bomb instead of an atom bomb," he thinks. "What difference does it make to a fly whether it is swatted by a rolled up newspaper or a baseball bat?"

He is also losing his ability to marvel at the fresh marvels of science, because so many of its wonders turn out to be blunders.

This has been a fearful and tremendous century of strident and continous change, multiple death and vast growth. It is perhaps the most adventurous and exploratory century in history, one that has thrown a small candle of light into the darkness of strange new worlds which seem to many more terrifying than inviting.

A man who is only as old as this century—just 52 years—has endured a lot. He has weathered at least three depressions and 2½ world wars. When he pauses to catch his breath and look back, it seems to him that nothing has remained unchange with the possible exception of mother love.

The safe-seeming world he was born into has vanished long ago. He has seen the horse and buggy replaced by the jet plane, the tereoscope slide give way to the television image, chewing tobacco succeeded by bubble gum.

The key phrase of that sturdy, distant time was "all I want is a fair chance, an opportunity to show that I can do." Badgered and bedevilled by these years of ceaseless change, a 52 - year -old man today worked fewer hours than his father did. But his leisure also is now tormented by fears of new dooms his grandfather never dreamed of even in his nightmares.

It is no wonder that this middle-aged man in a middle - aged century now often yearns, most of all, for some form of security, a sanctuary from the threat of immense danger that has palled his times almost as long as he can remember. Even the young, ordinarily vekturesome, are infected today by the craving for a kind of security no generation ever really has had in the long hard lot of mankind on this earth.

The ordinary mortal would like science to quit dealing up fresh mass - death instruments and build him instead an escape hatch from the perils of the twentieth century.

But in his heart he knows the wry truth: There is no escape hatch. A man must live in the time he has been allotted, and face its tasks with what courage and kindness and hope he can muster

It is bad enough to feel like one floating alone on a broken spar in ar unknown sea. But there is no point in anyone in that plight worrying about the possibility of a hurricane. He has trouble enough already, and that is why the average American today isn't in any panic over the h - bomb.

"THE battle in the office happened around 2:30 or a little after. What's the difference if he had an ahbi running till 3 or 4?" I asked Sally Ann.

"Don't ask me. All I know is he said it was very important to say 4 o'clock."

"I don't get it. But you sure supported him nobly."

"I promised. So I stuck by my promise. I never like to see anybody get in trouble for nothing. Anyway, I . . . well, I liked him—I mean, I liked him a lot. But this morning while I was coming out of the dining hall, he walked past me without saying a word. Just walked right past me, as if I was a—a telephone pole," she said, her voice suddenly getting louder, breathless. "But after I thought about it, I though maybe he really hadn't seen me—you know how sometimes you go past somebody and. . . . Well, we were supposed to go canoeing at 11, and I was down there at the dock, and he didn't even show up!"

She went back with me, dragging her feet. "I know what you're thinking," she said peevishly. "You think it means Dave did all that awful thing in the office. Well, Dave wouldn't hurt a flea. I mean, he's a stinker and everything, but I know him well enough to know he wouldn't do that."

I kept going at a good clip, and Sally Ann bumbled along after me. "You're just as bad as the rest of them," she bleated. "I never saw a man yet who was worth wasting a page of my diary on. All of you—selfish, sneaking . . . just trying to see what you can grab and get away with. I want you to know"—she had worked up to a trot now to keep up with me—"the only reason I'd ever want to marry a man—the only reason—is my name. I love Sally Ann, but I don't want to go through my whole life with Prushnick at the end."

It was silly to run into Midge Burnett as we came out of Honeymoon Lane. It was sillier to be embarrased by it. "Uh, uh, now we're both compromised," said Sally Ann behind me. Midge was standing up on the top of the slope, shielding her eyes against the afternoon sun and scanning the people in the water and along the bank. As we came out below her and to her right, Midge's head turned, her eyes caught me, caught me again in a double-take. "Dan!" her voice leaped urgently. She started on the run toward me. Three or four steps and she stopped. The realization that Sally Ann was with me seemed to wash over Midge's face. Remarkably, the flare of her eyes faded, her eager lips subsided. She turned. She walked swiftly up the slope.

I LET her go. If she was a crazy kid, ridiculously sensitive, devastated by the slightest rebuff, annihilated by jealousy, it wasn't my fault, it was the fault of the stupid, unseeing parents who had brought her up. Let them worry about it. . . .

I ran up the hill after her. I caught her arm. "What's it all about now, what's it all about?" I said roughly. "You started to say something. Say it!"

She jerked her arm away. "Never mind. Don't let me interrupt your—"

"She'll wait. Now talk. Or shut up—do whatever you want."

Her rounded little face swung around at me, her lips apart—she couldn't hold her story even if she wanted to. "Tell me—what was he doing—that investigator, typing on those typewriters up in the. . . ."

"Trying to find out if a certain document was typed on those machines. Why?"

"Listen: While he was in there, I just sort of walked in . . . to write a letter . . . and I noticed that fellow Dave Fields watching him from the hall. Then all of a sudden, Fields hurried down the steps. So I went to the window to see what was up."

"Yes?"

"Don't interrupt! Listen: Just a few minutes ago, I saw him sneak around the back of the recreation hall with a suitcase and out the driveway, and a car that looked like one of those Stroudsburg taxis came along and he got in."

"No kidding!"

"Yes! And you're such a smart aleck, I could strangle you."

• • •

"MIDGE, you're a sweetheart." I scooped up her arm and hauled her on the gallop to the maintenance building. I ran up the steps to the guard, sitting inside the door. "Where's Healey?"

"Down there in one of those cabins." He pointed toward the men's row.

"Hurry," Midge called out. "You want him to get away?"

"Go tell him Dave Fields has scrammed. He's heading for a bus or train station. We're going after him."

"Which one's Dave Fields?"

"Just tell him. Make it quick!"

Midge was already in the station wagon. I jumped in behind the wheel, kicked the starter, and went scorching across the cinders toward the road.

"I'm going with you only because I want to see the end of this thing I started," Midge said. "No other reason."

"Of course."

"Personally I hate you."

"Well, don't brag about it—you're the third one in line with that crack today."

Barbara Lamy Is Publicity Director for Sacred Heart

By Beverly Couhig

The Sacred Heart High School student council voted to accept Barbara Lamy for the post of publicity director for SHHS. This was decided at the meeting presided over by the president, Pat Keating, Wednesday afternoon.

Annette Moser, senior, was elected as the candidate for the Christmas queen contest sponsored by the Jaycees. The other candidates are — Alphonsine Miles and Patsy Ryan.

The office of student manager is being filled by Jim Eschbacher. Assistant student manager is John Bus.

A movie entitled "Down to the Sea in Ships", was presented before the student body Thursday.

Fairy, Saint Roles Only For Vorina

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP) — "I never played anything except sprites, angels and saints," says dancer, actress, narrator, wife and mother Vera Zorina.

This tall and most personable blonde then adds: "I can't do the sexy female"... which of course you don't believe for a minute though you know what she means.

She began her career at 10 when she played the part of a fairy in Max Reinhardt's production of "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Right now she is being the saint, that is to say, Joan, the speaking, the French-speaking, part in the Arthur Honegger oratorio, "Jeanne d'Arc au Bucher," or "Joan of Arc at the Stake." In the last few days statuesque, white-robed Zorina has been Joan with Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra in Philadelphia and New York; in the next few days she and they repeat the impressive presentation in Baltimore and Washington.

In between fairy and saint, she was Ariel in Margaret Webster's production of "The Tempest," an angel in "I Married an Angel," a doll in the ballet "Ietrouchka." At 16 she started dancing with the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe, and she has been in Hollywood films, straight ballet companies, her last appearance in classic ballet having been in the Metropolitan Opera House nearly 10 years ago.

Born in Berlin and christened Eva Brigitta Hartwig, she changed her name to Vera Zorina when Col. W. de Basil told her his ballet Russe, must consist of dancers with Russian names only; Vera Zorina, on a list of names he suggested, was the only one she could pronounce.

"I've always wondered why I play strange people," she say, with a puzzled shake of her head and a wave of her long, slender hands.

She suspects it may be the European background, or the combination of dance, stage art and voice. You might suspect her looks have something to do with it.

You can always pick out the husband of the woman whose last-minute excited conversation delays people when they're trying to go home from a party. He's the man who's been standing alone by the front door for the last hour with his hat on.

Actor's Life a Crap Game, Gamble to Get Rich or Poor

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"The actor's life is a crap game. It's all a matter of chance whether you make a mint or end up broke."

This realistic statement comes from the distinguished character actor, Leon Ames. So far the crap game of which he speaks is and where one throws "naturals." But he has taken steps to safeguard his future, just in case his luck doesn't hold out.

Ames is the envy of his fellow actors. He has protected himself against a highly unstable profession by a series of wise investments. The most notable of these is an auto dealership in Studio City, in the San Fernando Valley a few miles from Hollywood.

"My brother-in-law, Wayne Gossett, is the brains of the organization," the actor remarked modestly. "He handles most of the business details. But I help out whenever I can. I attend budget meetings and so forth. It also sell a lot of cars to friends."

When Ames first started the auto agency five years ago, he was the most popular man on the MGM lot. That was at a time when new cars were scarce, and many of his fellow workers badgered him for a sale. He reports selling 102 cars to MGM employes.

How did he land the agency? "Seven years at MGM," he explained. "I admit it: I never could have gotten into business unless I had been earning that nice salary for seven years. I'm grateful to the studio for that, but I wasn't sorry when they didn't want to sign me again. I don't want any more long-term studio contracts."

Aside from his present dealership, Ames is angling another and is involved in a sash balance factory and other enterprises. So far, he hasn't been forced to rely on these interests as his sole income.

"I figured out the other day that I have had only five weeks vacation in the past 12 years," he commented. "I've been working almost continuously since I opened out here in the play, 'The Male Animal,' in 1940."

Ames went on to the lengthy New York run of the show and then signed up for his service at MGM. After leaving the studio, he freelanced successfully and then decided to take a flier at the stage.

He signed up to star in the Chicago company of "The Moon Is Blue," expecting to last a few months in it. The show played 56 weeks in the Windy City, grossing $1,100,000 during the run. Even though he had a percentage of the profits, Ames was just as glad to see the play close.

He has returned to Hollywood and continues working at his steady pace. His current flicker is "Love Song" with Jane Wyman and Ray Milland.

Surveying his financial independence, he reflects:

"I'm glad I didn't make the big money when I was a kid. I probably would have thrown it away because I didn't have enough sense. But maturity has made me realize the nature of this crap game—the life of an actor.

"For five years, I was a member of the board of the Motion Picture Relief Fund. I saw many once-famous names on the rolls. That made me stop and think."

Hal Boyle's Column—

Seeking to Review the Past Causes Overlooking Future

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—This is going to be a lecture. So hold on to your ears.

It is a poor philosopher's summation of what he found in his native land after a brief trip to troubled Europe. How are they linked, these separated yet joined residents of Milan and Minneapolis, Rocky Mount and Rome?

This is a mystic period when Moscow, where Joe Stalin has his headquarters, and Mount Vernon, N. Y., where a lot of suburbanites have their children, try to go on regarding themselves as civic centers rather than the guinea pig communities of the future—the potential targets of the h-bomb.

I find at home and abroad a disturbing trend, a homesickness for the past. Too many people want to live in the world of yesterday. Instead of hopefully planning what lies ahead they want to sit and view what is bygone through the beautiful fog of time.

This is a helluva lot of fun, sitting and reviewing old mistakes and antique problems. But one tends to dwell too much upon old victories, often more imagined than actual.

What the times cry for now are fresh and bold decisions upon the problems of today, not the fading triumphs and defeats of yesteryear.

To be alive in this tremendous moment too often afflicts the young with a sense of duty, the middle-aged and elderly with a sense of worry. Both lift a tired shoulder.

Of course, what everybody wants is the wonderful world of yesterday. This is the safe area of reminiscence, the small corner of the past where anybody can remember he had it better than he does now, and make himself a hero of villain at will.

The deadly thing about it is that everyone feels the same way about it a little bit. The German in Berlin, the Frenchman on a farm near Verdun, the Belgian hotel keeper at Spa, the Italian wine grower in the Alban hills, the lonely Spanish shepherd, the weary clerk in an American business office—each day dreams of the days gone by. The escape hatch of the past! Everyone can find a way out of responsibility through it.

But today is the day of adventure—it must always be today or tomorrow. Who can deny that each fresh dawn may unveil a poem above price, open a brace new world where man and atom may explore each other in peace, and the cost of bread falls so low there will be a loaf for every lip?

The sea of ignorance waves at and threatens our island of knowledge, so small and isolated a haven. Mankind yearns on an atoll—and there are continents yet to discover, or drown trying to reach.

But it is so much easier to feel sorry for yourself than it is to be an explorer in this life, whether you search by heart or seek by microscope.

The human race sighs at this peak moment of history for rest after a series of world wide and exhausting wars and business crises. Around the world men wonder.

"Is life worth while: Where are we drifting?"

I suppose that since the morn of meaning this query has plagued throughtful men each day on awakening from the sanctuary of slumber.

Ten Years Ago Boston Fire Killed 492

BOSTON, Nov. 22 (AP)—Just ten years ago—on Nov. 28, 1942—sudden fire spread with bomb-burst speed through the inflammable decor of Boston's crowded Cocoanut Grove night club and killed 492 people.

The nation has been at war a year, but the first edge of excitement had worn off. The principal news of the day was the war—but that was overseas. It looked like the only local news on the front pages of Boston Sunday newspapers would be the smashing victory of the visiting Holy Cross football team over Boston College.

Jubilant Holy Cross fans had flocked, with others, to the Cocoanut Grove night club on the fringe of the theater district.

A thousand persons were jammed by mid-evening in the night club which had normal accommodations for 600.

The several bars were crowded. Waiters struggled between too-crowded tables. The tinkle of a piano and the voice of a girl singer came through the din.

Walls gay with artificial leather, and ceilings covered with cloth, imparted a sense of luxury. Artificial palm trees with artificial leaves grew from the floor.

Guests glancing at watches saw the hands slipping past 10:15 p.m. time for the floor show to begin. In a darkened spot, close to the wall and ceiling, a bus boy climbed up to replace a burned-out electric bulb on an artificial palm.

Orchestra leader Mickey Alpert raised his baton.

Small wonder that few heard those first confused shouts. From a corner of the Melody Lounge in the basement, shouts that sounded like "fire!"

Lights went out. A panic-swept crowd swayed, groped, tipped over tables and chairs, fell over the screaming fallen.

Fire flared in hungry lines along the gay fabrics tacked to the plywood ceilings. Burning cloth fell in flaming strips on the crowds.

The crowd choked on hot smoke and acrid fumes.

People jammed both sides of a revolving door. Whether it was locked was never determined. Others ran to an exit on the other side of the building and piled against a door which swung inward — and couldn't be opened against the crowd's pressure.

There they died behind those doors — 200 piled up behind one door, 100 behind the other.

An employe tugged one side of a double door open and a fair share of those who escaped fought their way out through that. A few scrambled out of a small cellar window. Some climbed through small high windows in toilet rooms. A few climbed stairs to second-floor dressing rooms and escaped through windows onto an adjacent roof.

Firemen arrived before even the first alarm sounded. Called to a minor fire in the vicinity, they heard shrieks from the club and saw smoke and flame. Despite their early arrival, the firemen could do little to save the hundreds trapped in the inferno.

Rescuers dragged the living and dead from the one open half-door, smashed the revolving door and began hauling out the heaped up victims. The rescuers hacked and smashed open the windows and the flimsy panels behind them.

Nearby restaurants and garages became morgues filling with dead.

At 11 p.m., less than 40 minutes after the first alarm, victims poured into city hospital in a stream averaging one every 11 seconds.
